GOVERNOR SCORES SALARY GRAB

Coolidge, in Message to House, Says Real Reward Is Honor of Service Rendered

Governor Coolidge this afternoon vetoed the bill to increase the salary of the members of the Legislature from $1,000 to $1,500.

In the veto message, read in the House of Representatives, he said that membership in the Legislature was a voluntary public service, not a livelihood, and that "there is no man of sufficient talent in the Commonwealth so poor that he cannot serve for a session which averages about five months."

The Legislature has no superior, its critics "have most frequently been those who have approached it with the purpose of securing selfish desires of their clients or themselves," and the great reward for the service rendered is the honor which it brings, Governor Coolidge asserted.

An effort to pass the bill over the Governor's veto will be made in the House on Monday.

Governor Coolidge said in part in the veto:

TAX BURDENS HEAVY.

"These are times that require careful scrutiny of public expenditure. The burden of taxes resulting from war is heavy. The addition of $142,000 to the expenses of the Commonwealth in perpetuity is not to be undertaken but upon proven necessity.

"Service in the General Court is not obligatory but optional. It is not to be undertaken as a profession or a means of livelihood. It is a voluntary public service.

"In accord with the principles of our democratic institutions, a

Former 'Follies' Girl Seeks Separation

Muriel Martin Endicott Accuses Descendant of Colonial Governor

Muriel Martin Endicott, seeking separate maintenance from lineal descendant of famous Bay State Governor. Hearing opened today on her charge of non-support.

Muriel Martin Endicott, formerly in the "Follies" and the New York roof garden attractions, is suing her husband, John Endicott, lineal descendant of Governor John Endicott of Massachusetts, for separate maintenance, charging non-support. The case came up for trial late today in the Probate Court before Judge Prest.

Endicott is a graduate of Harvard College, and spent two years in Harvard Law School. He is the son of George Gardner Endicott of No. 386 Longwood avenue, and is twenty-five years of age. His wife is twenty-one.

They were married in March, 1917, and went to live with his father in December of that year. Mrs. Endicott alleges in her complaint that her husband was frequently absent from home, and she did not know where he was, and that things were unpleasant for her at the family residence on Longwood avenue, Brookline.

Endicott went into the service as a naval instructor two years ago, and was an aviator in France for a brief period. He is contesting the suit and is represented by W. M. Hurd. T. J. Barry represents Mrs. Endicott.

TEMPERS BLAME OF NURSE IN DEATH CASE

Lowell, June 6.—That Ellen S. Greenlage, aged seventy-five, was killed by formaldehyde administered in mistake for Epsom salts at the State Infirmary in Tewksbury, February 13, is the conclusion of Judge Pickman of the Lowell Police Court.

Judge Pickman finds that a nurse, Kathleen M. Cassidy, employed at the infirmary was directed to procure from a medicine cabinet Epsom salts for two patients. The bottle containing formaldehyde had an indistinct label.

Judge Pickman finds negligence on the part of the nurse, but not criminal negligence, and calls attention to the exacting duties imposed on the nurses and the effect of such duties on the woman's system. He says the nurse should have applied the test of smell before administering the dose, as formaldehyde has an odor readily distinguishable.

MARION O'BRIEN BAILED

Barney's Sweetheart Given Temporary Liberty Because of Postponement of Trial

Mrs. Marion O'Brien, charged with being accessory to the escape of her sweetheart, Herman L. Barney, from the Charles street jail, and with being accessory to the alleged murder of Patrolman Charles E. Deininger by the jail-breaker, was released today in $5,000 bail.

Her release came when it was announced in Brighton Court that her trial and that of Attorney Thomas F. Murphy and the other two defendants charged with complicity in the escape had been postponed until Wednesday morning.

The postponement was made necessary by the death of James H. Devlin, father of Attorney James H. Devlin, Jr., who was prosecuting the case. The bail disappointed those who had awaited with interest the promise of Attorney Murphy, Mrs. Lillian Ashenden and Mrs. Mary E. Collins to introduce convincing evidence of innocence today.

Mrs. O'Brien was released on $5,000 bail on the charge of being accessory to the murder and on the charge of being accessory to the escape from jail was allowed to go on her own recognizance.

Bail was promptly provided. Since the recapture of Barney she has been in the Charles street jail.

The Pannonia, arriving later in the morning, brought 2,052 troops, including the 317th Field Signal Battalion of Massachusetts. The contingent was under command of Major Luther I. Ross of Seattle.

10 MINUTE SERVICE FOR ATLANTIC AVENUE LINE

The fourminute shuttle line between the North and South stations will be operated as at present.

The resolution of Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, embodying a request of the Senate that the American peace commissioners secure a hearing for Sinn Fein representatives before the peace commission at Paris, which was blocked yesterday by Senator John Sharp Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, also was taken up.

The Walsh resolution was adopted as an amendment to that of Borah by a viva voce vote.

Borah's resolution also was adopted without a roll call.

SOME RELIEF IN BREEZE FROM SOUTHWEST

A cool twelve-mile southwest wind, which blew steadily all night, baffled with the upward surge of the mercury today and afforded much relief to suffering Bostonians after the three-day hot spell.

The weather man optimistically declared the day would be only moderately warm. He also stated there were no indications of the wind changing to east.

The official forecast was:

"Unsettled, probably local showers late tonight or Saturday."

The highest marks for June 6 in previous years were in 1888, when the mercury registered 91, in 1889, when a mark of 91 was reached, and in 1931, when the thermometer showed 90.

The thermometer dropped considerably during the night, with the result that for the first time in several days most people were enabled to obtain a sound sleep.

Should the weather man's prediction of "somewhat cooler" for tomorrow fail, Boston faces the ominous situation of not having enough ice on hand to supply any extraordinary demand over Sunday. Coming earlier in June than usual, the hot spell found the ice companies unprepared to load their ice cars fast enough. Not until Monday can they catch up, and then only by tremendous effort. In the meanwhile independent dealers cannot get ice and the Boston Ice Company, for one, is selling only a 15-cent piece to each customer.

PRESIDENT WILL LET LAW STAND

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, June 6.—Unless Congress intervenes, war-time prohibition will go into effect July 1.

The International News Service was authorized to state officially today that President Wilson will take no further steps to prevent the United States from going dry on that date.

The President has been overwhelmed with appeals from America to set aside the war-time prohibition measure because of the belief that Congress will fail to act upon his recommendation, but he has taken the stand that he is unable to do anything further in view of Attorney General Palmer's decision.

The President, however, plans to discuss the effects of the war-time prohibition measure with the Cabinet on his return to the United States before the law becomes effective.

President Wilson expressed his warmest satisfaction at the action of the Senate in passing the woman suffrage measure and said he was convinced enough State Legislatures will ratify the amendment to permit women to vote in the next presidential election.

Ireland at the Peace Conference he will appeal to France and Italy and will demand to know why President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing do not carry out the wishes of Congress.

Germans Charge French With Plotting Ruin of the Fatherland

Berlin, June 6.—A new crisis in the peace negotiations has developed here, according to charges that the French commanders of the Army of Occupation have encouraged and lent considerable support to the leaders of the movement for the formation of a Rhine republic.

Criticism of the terms of the treaty of peace was beginning to moderate when reports of the proclamation of the republic at Wiesbaden were received. It is now charged in government circles that the French, not content with gaining control of the Saar valley for a period of years and with other territorial aggrandizement, are now plotting the dismemberment of what remains of the old German empire.

The Berlin press unanimously indorses the strong note of protest handed to the allies at Paris by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, against the alleged support by the French of the Rhine separatist movement. The head of the German peace delegation asserted that the separatist movement is bound to disturb the fulfillment of the terms of the peace treaty and made the pointed charge that the French had provoked the separatist movement in vain of the terms of the armistice.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau informed the allies that Germany could carry out the terms of the proposed treaty of peace only if her economic and territorial basis was unaltered.

Erzberger Now in Favor of Signing Terms, Says Berlin Paper

By International News Service.

London, June 6.—Dr. Mathias Erzberger, head of the German armistice commission, after a prolonged discussion of the peace terms, is now advocating signing the treaty, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin today quoting the Deutsche Tages Zeitung.

Previous advices had characterized Dr. Erzberger as being opposed to signing the treaty.

Berlin, June 6, via London, June 6.—Indictments of the Secessionist leaders who formed a new republic in the Rhineland have been held up by the government, pending the reply of Marshal Foch to Dr. Mathias Erzberger, chairman of the German armistice commission. Arrests would be impossible without the sanction of the allies, as allied forces occupy the territory where the separatist leaders are living.

Dr. Erzberger's note was a protest against the "unheard of encroachments of the allied military commanders" in the Rhine district.

The note asks for the release of President Adelung of the Hessian Assembly, who was arrested along with a number of others. Protest is made also against posters made public at Mainz and signed by General Mangin (commander of the French army of occupation) announcing the nullification of paragraph 81 of the German penal code regarding German indictments for treason.

Admiral Kolchack too Reactionary for the Russians, Says Hunt

By International News Service.

The Russian people will not submit to a government under Admiral Kolchack, whose recognition by the allies is being urged by French and certain other foreign interests, declared Frazier Hunt, newspaper correspondent, who returned from Russia today, after stopping in Paris to give his views to Colonel House. Kolchack, Hunt said, is regarded as too reactionary. The Russians are anxious for recognition by the allies, particularly by the United States, he said, but are determined to have a radical government and will not permit the reactionaries of the Czarist regime to return to power.

"The people have had a touch of real liberty and are going to hang on to it," he said. "All classes have a great faith in America, which they consider the one great nation they can trust."

The Bolsheviki have an army of 1,000,000 men, Hunt said, while Admiral Kolchak has only 200,000 opposing them. Petrograd, he said, is now as safe as New York, and there are now no executions except of robbers and hold-up men, who are shot as soon as caught. The deaths from disease in both Petrograd and Moscow are appalling, he said, because the population is underfed and too weak to resist disease.

Changes in Peace Treaty Are "Partially Satisfactory," Say the Experts of Germany

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, June 6.—Amplification are being planned for the peace treaty by which the exact amount of Germany's war indebtedness will be known by November 1st, it was learned from allied sources today.

Another conference was held by the experts of the allied and associated powers at Versailles to consider possible changes in the clauses dealing with economic restrictions.

The German experts are reported to have taken the position that the changes already proposed are "partially satisfactory."

The work of drafting the reply to the German counter proposals is being carried out with all possible haste with the various groups of experts contributing data.

President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau are said to have framed most of the preamble which will carry the rejection of the German proposals.

British delegates are in complete accord and are united with the other envoys on the food proposals which will be presented to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, chairman of the German peace delegation, next week. Not a single one of the original principles in the original treaty will be sacrificed.

Two Rhodes Chances This Year

Each State entitled to one Rhodes Scholarship will be alloted two appointments this year, since there were no elections since the declaration of war. The scholarships will be awarded in October.

Mr. Wilson's Bid for Support of Predatory Plutocracy Will Fail

The telegraphs have today been returned to private ownership by the renegade Democracy which constitutes the federal administration. This is the first physical expression of the abandonment of the Democratic principle of public ownership, of the repudiation of pledges and reversal of policies to which the administration has been committed by Mr. Hines, Mr. Burleson and Mr. Wilson himself.

It was obvious when Mr. McAdoo retired from the position of Secretary of the Treasury that his retirement was due to some difference with the President over the matter of public ownership of public utilities.

It was not clear from the immediate circumstances whether the President was in favor of a permanent policy of public ownership and Mr. McAdoo was against such a policy, or whether Mr. McAdoo was in favor of a permanent policy of public ownership and the President was against it.

In the light of subsequent events, however, it was obvious that it was Mr. McAdoo who was in favor of public ownership, and the President who had again executed one of his political somersaults, reversed his public declaration, and opposed the public ownership he had formerly advocated.

This became reasonably clear when Mr. Hines proposed a plan to return the railroads to private ownership, and it was made doubly plain when Mr. Burleson came out with his proposition to return the telegraphs to private ownership.

It was obvious then that the policy of the President had been merely a plan to tide private ownership over difficult conditions, and then to return essentially public functions to private hands with some sort of government bonus or guaranty which would make private ownership doubly secure in its monopoly, and place the public generally doubly at the mercy of private greed.

This policy of President Wilson's was obvious enough from the fact that his clerks had declared this plan as their policy; for Mr. Wilson has but few independent, upstanding individuals about him, and as a rule his associates are servitors who parrot his views and by so doing retain their hold upon their political perch.

But if there were any doubt of this return of public functions to private operations being Mr. Wilson's personal policy, it was dispelled by his personal declaration in his late message.

A more abject bid for the support of public service corporations—and these are the corporations which spend the most money in political campaigns for the corruption of politics—has never been made recently than this plan and purpose of Mr. Wilson to abandon all policies of public ownership and to return to his former subservience to railroad domination.

Of course, there is time for Mr. Wilson to have several views and reversals of views on all questions before the campaign of 1920.

But the present indications are that the main rivalry between the Democratic party and the Republican party in the next election will take the form of competitive bids for the campaign support of predatory plutocracy.

Mr. Wilson will lose on this issue, for nobody can outbid the Republicans in concessions and largesses to the privileged interests.

In fact the Republicans ARE the privileged interests, and no one can be more liberal to them than they are willing to be to themselves.

Therefore, Mr. Wilson's plea and plan are foredoomed to failure.

He will not, through his subserviency to the privileged interests, get their support, but he will lose the radical element of the Democratic party—which is the vast majority of that party—and will probably cause the creation of a new and genuinely radical party, which will permanently put the Democratic party out of the political running.

Some time ago Mr. Bryan said that at the end of Mr. Wilson's incumbency as President there would not be any Democratic party; there might be a Wilson party, but there would not be a Democratic party. Apparently Mr. Bryan was right.

The Wilson party will not be a democratic party or a radical party of any kind, and it certainly will not be a majority party.

But, inasmuch as there must be in this country some party to represent the progressive principles and purposes of the majority of the citizens, we may look for the formation of a new and genuinely radical party before or during the next political campaign.

And this party, being genuinely radical, will probably have the sincerity and the intelligence to nominate a genuine radical for the presidency, and not a visionary, vacillating gentleman who has no real convictions, no firm principles, and no policy based on anything more admirable and more durable than his own personal advancement.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

TELEGRAPH STRIKE TIES UP SOUTHEASTERN STATES

By International News Service.

Atlanta, Ga., June 6.—The fifth day of the strike against the Southern Bell Telephone Company broke today with almost every Western Union wire in the Southeastern States silenced by a sympathetic strike of commercial telegraphers from Richmond to Tampa and from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic Coast.

Replying to a telegram sent last night to both International President Konenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers Union and Telephone Operators Association, and Postmaster General Burleson asking if both sides would agree to submit adjudication of the Atlanta telephone controversy to a local tribunal, Mayor James T. Key today received a telegram from Mr. Konenkamp that the union would agree to arbitration if the company would agree to abide by the findings of an arbitration board.

Postmaster General Burleson's reply, as given to Congressman Will D. Upshaw, was a flat refusal to arbitrate.

Predictions of the strikers that all strike-breakers would be concentrated in Atlanta when the strike was spread to other Southeastern cities, and that the Atlanta Western Union office alone would be supplied with telegraphers, were borne out by events Thursday night and this morning, when dozens of Western Union offices throughout the Southeast were closed and the keys mailed to division headquarters in Atlanta.

MANY OFFICES CLOSED.

Telegrams were received at general strike headquarters in batches of a dozen or more at a time bearing the news of walkouts all over this section responding to the strike order. Charleston and Tampa reported at 7 o'clock that every man on duty had walked out.

Winston-Salem wired that every telegrapher was out and the offices permanently closed. Spartanburg sent a similar message. Charlotte wired that every man on duty, with the exception of three messengers, not telegraphers, had answered the strike call.

New Orleans wired that a large percentage was out. Other messages were received announcing complete walkouts and the closing of offices.

The order for a general walkout in all Southeastern States was issued late yesterday by International President S. J. Konenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union and Telephone Operators' Association.

More than 200 strike-breakers had arrived late yesterday from New York and other cities. About half of these, union leaders declared, will refuse to go to work. They are quartered by the Western Union at the Piedmont and the Ansley hotels.

SPECIAL MET BY AUTOS.

"The strikebreakers' special" from New York, which came in over the and stopped at Chamblee by the Western Union officials with automobiles to drive them into the city.

On account of the large crowds who were gathered both at Brookwood station and the terminal station awaiting the arrival of the strike-breakers, it was found advisable to remove them from the train before reaching Atlanta and spirit them into the city secretly. No violence has been threatened, however, and only small committees had been sent by the union to meet and inform them that a strike was on here.

Officials of both telegraph and telephone companies expressed pleasure that the lines had been turned back to private ownership so that the former owners might be free to make a fight against the union.

Nation-Wide Strike to Be Considered at Chicago Tomorrow

By International News Service.

Wahington, June 6.—Plans for the nation-wide strike of telegraphers will be perfected at a conference of union officials in Chicago tomorrow, S. J. Konenkamp, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, announced today. Just before calling out the Western Union Telegraphers of the Southeastern District, following the announcement that Postmaster-General Burleson had restored the lines for operation by their owners, Konenkamp asserted that he had no hopes for a peaceful settlement.

"Since we are forced to strike in order to protect our right to organize and bargain collectively," he said, "I feel that the best place for directing such a fight, is from our international headquarters in Chicago."

A general strike, Konenkamp added, would affect only the telegraphers of those companies which had just been relinquished from government control. Operators in the employ of press associations, brokers, etc., would not be called out, he said.

"Mr. Burleson's getting out from under does not change our situation in the least," Konenkamp declared.

CONFUSION IN CONGRESS.

Meanwhile members of Congress who were identified with wire legislation were frankly "up in the air" today. The unexpected order returning the lines had shot their program to pieces, and some were of the opinion that no legislation of any kind would now be necessary. It was their understanding, they said, that the lines were to go back only following the enactment of legislation.

Senator Kellogg's bill providing for the return of the wires, with existing rates to remain in effect sixty days, was to have been called up in the Senate this afternoon. The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee was to map out its plan of procedure at a conference late today. Chairman Cummins expressed the belief that Burleson's order might make the committee's bill for the return of the lines unnecessary now.

Senator Kellogg characterized Postmaster-General Burleson's order as "simply flim flam." The Senate committee, he said, would proceed to report the bill and urge its passage.

According to Nathan C. Kingsbury, vice-president of the American Telephone Company, who testified today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, Burleson had not turned back the wire systems, but had "simply done away with the Board of Operations.

"The companies are now operating with their own officials," Kingsbury continued, "but operating for the government and reporting direct to the postmaster-general instead of to the Board of Operations.

MORE ARRESTS IN BOMB PLOT EXPECTED

sons of radical tendencies were being watched.

It became known today that a conference of officials was held late yesterday to decide whether these radicals should be taken into custody immediately. However, it was decided to let them operate temporarily under the closest scrutiny in the hope that indisputable evidence might be obtained against them.

It was said to be the policy of Chief Flynn to urge the deportation of practically every one who falls into the "Red" dragnet that has been spread over the country. The Department of Justice has turned this phase of the situation over to the Department of Labor, which is in control of the deportation machinery. Labor department officials indicated, however, that there would be no "blanket" deportations, but that each case would be disposed of on its individual merits.

Believe Dynamiters Included Men Who Had Just Come From Europe

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 6.—The possibility that Anarchists newly arrived from Europe had a prominent part in the explosion of bombs in several cities Monday night, was under investigation by federal agents and the Philadelphia police today. It was learned from the secret service men who came here from Washington that a purse picked up on the lawn of the home of Attorney-General Palmer the day following the explosion at the Palmer home, has given them an important clew. The purse contained a note written in French stating that the bearer had just arrived in New York from France and naming the boat on which he was a passenger. The purse also contained French and Italian stamps. Leather experts said the purse was made in France.

Inside the wallet was also the picture of a boy about nine years old. The boy's hair apparently was of the same color as that of the anarchist killed at the Palmer home, and Federal agents believe the boy is the son of the dead man.

Modern Eves Are Too Much for Many at Brighton

By International News Service.

London, June 6.—The modern Eves are driving away large numbers of elderly men and women with old-fashioned views from Brighton, England's most popular Summer resort, says the Weekly Dispatch.

Some of the bathing suits worn by women at Brighton leave nearly the whole body exposed. The Brighton correspondent of the Weekly Dispatch tells of seeing three elderly invalids order their servants to wheel them away because of the daring bathing suits worn by three women who were disporting themselves nearby.

Tufts Starts Probe of Newton Bomb Outrage In Spite of Threats

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts showed today how little he was intimidated by the threatening letter sent him yesterday by starting a vigorous investigation into the bombing of the home of Representative Leland Powers in Newtonville. In spite of the threat of "You Next," sent him anonymously through the mail, the district attorney took personal charge of the inquiry by the Grand Jury of Middlesex County.

He outlined the case to the jurors, and asked for John Doe indictments to cover an unknown suspect or suspects.

The Cambridge courthouse and the Grand Jury were carefully guarded, and no one was allowed in or near the building who could not give a satisfactory reason for being there.

A number of Newton witnesses were heard.

ALICE DREXEL, SOCIETY BEAUTY, ELOPES WITH AVIATION CAPTAIN

PARENTS OF BRIDE SHOCKED

Girl Who Had Said She Would Marry a Foreigner Changes Her Mind

New York, June 6.—Miss Alice Gordon Drexel, the statuesque society beauty who smilingly insulted American men by declaring that they made poor husbands, and that she would marry a foreigner, has changed her mind after a meeting with Captain William Barrett of the American Air Forces. Following a hurried wooing and a regular old-fashioned elopement the very aloof Miss Drexel is today his wife.

Society in New York, Philadelphia and Newport is intensely interested in this latest triumph of Dan Cupid and the army uniform. As for the once aloof young woman who might have been a duchess, or at least a countess, she shamelessly points out the right of a woman to change her mind, and is apparently quite contented to be known as Mrs. "Bill" Barrett of the U. S. A.

The romance was one of the rapid fire variety, and left the numerous admirers of the former Miss Drexel gaping. Most of her friends did not suspect more than a casual acquaintance between her and the dashing birdman and that of very recent date.

PARENTS "SHOCKED."

Her father and mother have not met him, and when informed of the marriage took on in quite the approved fashion of aristocratic papas and mamas, and expressed themselves as "both surprised and shocked." And as for Newport, to think that Alice Drexel, once regarded as the most level-headed as well as most beautiful young women of the colony, should have been swept off her feet by a simple captain, is beyond comprehension.

The secret marriage was performed in New Rochelle, in the home of Rev. A. A. Bouton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was a simple affair, far different from the spdendid church wedding her friends had visualized for her when she accepted one of her numerous titled admirers, and became the principal in a gorgeous "international match."

The new Mrs. Barrett is twenty-seven years old, one of the great heiresses of the country, and the flower of a family prominent in business and society for generations. All that is known here of the groom is that he is an aviator, and the son of the late William Barrett of Washington. He is thirty-one. The only witnesses of the wedding were Stanley Barge and Miss Margaret Graydon of New York, who motored to New Rochelle with the eloping pair.

SHOCKED THE PATRIOTS.

Some time ago the then Miss Drexel shocked the ultra-patriotic and drove several native-born admirers to despair by announcing that she considered the American man far from an ideal husband, and for herself, she would ultimately choose a foreigner, probably an Englishman. In this statement she enumerated the sins and shortcomings of the home-grown male in quite a discouraging fashion. She wanted to be a "real help to her husband," and to aid him in politics, but she found American politics not to her taste, quite without that afternoon-tea atmosphere in which affairs of State are settled in dear old London.

These and other unfavorable comparisons made her unpopular in certain quarters, but that has been forgotten now since she has joined the great army of American girls of all classes to succumb to the lure of the national uniform.

75 WITNESSES TO TESTIFY IN SKEELS CASE

Lawrence, June 6.—District Attorney Henry G. Wells of Essex County has ordered summoned over 75 witnesses to appear at the trial of Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren, Andover nurse, whose trial on the charge of murder opens here next Monday morning. It is expected that the trial, which promises to be one of the most interesting in the annals of New England courts, will take fully two weeks.

Mrs. Lundgren is in a fairly comfortable condition, although she has not entirely recovered from weakness attendant upon a recent operation performed for a stomach ailment to save her life. No motions of any kind which would tend to delay the trial have been filed by the defence, which will be represented by Attorney Daniel Daley of Boston.

While Mr. Lundgren has not discussed the trial at any length of late, he expresses a serene confidence that it will be one of short duration, ending in the complete acquittal of his wife on the murder and larceny charges, which he has repeatedly declared to be the result of "a serious mistake."

DR. REDDISH IS INNOCENT, SAYS WIFE

Mrs. Elizabeth Donahue Reddish of Dorchester, whose husband, Dr. Horace A. Reddish of Jerseyville, Ill., is awaiting trial on a double murder charge, has written her mother-in-law a letter expressing utmost confidence in the innocence of her husband, from whom she has been separated for two years.

Dr. Reddish will be put on preliminary trial next Tuesday, June 10, on charges of murder of his father, Stephen M. Reddish, a wealthy landowner of Jerseyville, Ill., and of Mrs. Rachel Cisco, the father's elderly housekeeper. Both were found shot to death in the Reddish mansion at Jerseyville on April 25.

CALLS CHARGES ABSURD.

Dr. Reddish, from his cell in Jerseyville Jail, protested that absurd accusations had been made against him and that, after the discovery of the murder of his father and Mrs. Cisco, he had even been accused of making way with his wife.

The accused physician's mother, who is in a hospital at Alton, Ill., received a letter of sympathy from her daughter-in-law, the doctor's wife. Dr. Reddish gave out this letter for publication, saying:

"I hope this letter will still some of the gossip about my doing away with my wife."

GIVES OUT LETTER.

The letter from Mrs. Reddish of Dorchester to her mother-in-law in Illinois, as given out by Dr. Reddish, reads as follows:

> Boston, Mass., May 22, 1919.
>
> Dear Mother:
>
> I have been intending to write to you on this sad occasion, which I am very much grieved over, and offer you my heart's sympathy in your troubles.
>
> I wish I could be with you and my poor dear husband at this time, as I know he is the most innocent poor boy on earth to be accused of such a horrible crime. Tell him that my faith will never weaken, because I know he is innocent, and our good God will help him to bear up.
>
> I don't want to say much until I hear from you, hoping it will be as soon as possible. If I can be of any asistance please notify me at once. I hope little son is well. God bless him. I must now close. As ever,

DICKEY TELLS OF INTENT TO OBEY COURT ORDER

Denies Propaganda Hostile to Trustees in Christian Science Case

Adam H. Dickey, director of the Christian Science Church, testified before Judge Braley in the Supreme Judicial Court, at the hearing today on the contempt proceedings brought by the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society against the church directors, that since the filing of the trustees' bill the church directors have never had any purpose or intent to violate the injunction of the court restraining them from interfering with the management of Christian Science publications.

Mr. Dickey became director of the Christian Science Church in 1910, at the request of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy and has since continued in office.

He testified that no attempt had been made to carry into effect action taken at the annual meeting of the church on June 2 because counsel advised them that it would be unwise to do so.

He further testified that the church directors had not circulated propaganda hostile to the trustees. He said that when Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the trustees, called the attention of the directors to remarks of one of the church lecturers, the directors caused a telegram to be sent to each of the twenty-three church lecturers who are scattered through the United States and Canada, asking them to refrain from discussing the pending litigation between the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Company and the directors of the church.

Regarding the letter which Clifford P. Smith sent to the newspapers after the publication of the McCracken letter, Mr. Dickey said he did not think that the Smith letter was a violation of the injunction.

ELECTION OF EDITORS.

In cross-examination by Attorney Whipple, Mr. Dickey said that the point of difference between the trustees and directors did not in his opinion affect the election of editors of the various publication under the charge of the publishing company. He said the injunction did not prohibit the directors from selecting editors for the publishing company, and he did not understand that the trustees in their bill claimed the right to select employes, but had followed an unbroken custom of employing persons elected by the directors.

The election of Ella W. Hoog on May 24 as associate editor of periodicals was made by the directors on the supposition that they had the right to take such action and was not in violation of the injunction, Mr. Dickey said.

The witness said it was necessary in performing the duties of the trustees that they should have an editor and the directors thought they were helping the trustees when they elected Mrs. Hoag. He did not understand that the trustees objected to the election of Mrs. Hoag.

NOT A DEED OF TRUST.

In answer to Mr. Whipple, Mr. Dickey said that under his construction of the deed of trust the trustees could not supply editors until they were elected by the board of directors. Shown a copy of the deed and asked to point out anything showing that the board should elect editors, Mr. Dickey failed to find any such clause. Finally he said that such a right was derived from the church manual. He said that the board of trustees had no right to dismiss Mr. McCracken.

During the hearing Judge Braley said that although what the respondents might say would not be justification yet, if it should appear that they were honestly mistaken, the court in imposing sentence for contempt would take that fact into consideration.

James A. Neal, Edward A. Merritt, William R. Rathvon and Mrs. Annie M. Knott, the other members of the church board of directors, all testified that since the suit of the trustees was brought they had never in any way intended to violate the injunction issued by the court.

This closed the evidence. Next Tuesday morning, after hearing arguments, Judge Braley will give his decision whether the directors of the church are in contempt of court, as alleged by the trustees of the publishing company.

Memorial of Respect Adopted for Late Mrs. Hearst

Yosemite, Cal., June 6.—The Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West adopted resolutions in respect to the memory of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst. They were presented by William Strittmatter and B. Madden, delegates from Seaport Parlor No. 158 of Sausalito, of which William Randolph Hearst is a member.

The resolutions read:

"Resolved, That when adjournment be taken this morning it be in mark of respect to the passing of one of California's pioneers, a woman whose talent, generosity and untiring zeal in behalf of all that is good made her a national figure. Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst was the mother of our brother, William Randolph Hearst.

"Resolved, That the Grand President appoint a committee to forward a copy of these resolutions to Brother William Randolph Hearst."

'THE NAVY DARES ANYTHING,' SAYS DANIELS

Secretary Tells of War Achievements to Graduates at the Naval Academy

By International News Service.

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—The navy dares anything.

This was the keynote of an address by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to the graduating class of the United States Naval Academy here today.

Reviewing the accomplishments of the navy in times of peace as well as war, the Secretary predicted that the inventive genius of its men would in the not far distant future develop ships capable of a speed of sixty miles an hour and airplanes with a speed of 200 miles an hour.

"We might paraphrase John Paul Jones' phrase, 'I have just begun to fight,' and say of Americans, 'We have just begun to invent,'" said the Secretary.

GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT.

After reviewing the recent trans-Atlantic flight and telling of the accomplishments of the navy's great guns on the Western front, Secretary Daniels expressed the belief that the repair of the German ships, wrecked by their crews when it became evident they were to be taken over, was one of the greatest accomplishments of the war.

"To put in new boilers would have taken months and perhaps years," he said. "As a result, orders were issued to make all repairs possible by electric welding and to resort to mechanical patching only where welding was impracticable. There were plenty of men who said it could not be done, and the repair of these vessels was one of the notable achievements of the war."

PRAISES LEAGUE PLAN.

The Secretary read a heretofore confidential order issued in the early days of the war inviting all officers in the navy, regardless of rank, to submit direct to the Navy Department suggestions and the results of any studies they might have made.

The Secretary also spoke warmly for the League of Nations.

"The war will have been fought in vain," he declared, "if 1920 finds the world without a just and firm purpose and an international tribunal so that never will it be possible for any Caesar to again bestride the world or any man on horseback to ride roughshod over the rights of nations, great or small.

ISOLATION GONE FOREVER.

"The day of isolation for America has passed. The ancients believed the seas were made to separate nations. We have learned that they were created to unite them in bonds of friendship. The close and intimate association of men of the American navy with the naval personnel of allied countries has done two things: Cemented friendships which will endure and foreshadow international relations which will preserve the peace of the world."

BOSTON MAN IN BIG COMBINE OF PACKERS

New York, June 6.—Eight independent packing concerns have been combined into one big organization with a capital of $165,000,000, according to an announcement of James Imbrie, head of the investment house of that name. The names of the packing houses are withheld until the arrival of J. S. Hawkinson, the president of the new corporation, on Monday. Hawkinson is the vice-president of Wilson & Company, and has resigned the position to which he rose from messenger boy to take his new place. F. S. Snyder of Boston, former member of the Food Administration executive committee, will be an executive of the combine, according to Imbrie.

DR. HARDING TO MARRY GERALDINE LAWRENCE

Congratulations are being received by Dr. Edward Harding of the Boston City Hospital surgical staff, and Miss Geraldine Lawrence of Groton, following the announcement of their engagement. Miss Lawrence is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence.

Dr. Harding is a son of Enor H. Harding of No. 155 Bay State road, and recently returned from France with a Military Cross awarded by the British government for surgical work done with the 58th British Division. He was a captain in the British army, serving from May, 1916, to January, 1919.

MINIATURE UPRISINGS REPORTED IN RHINELAND

London, June 6.—Observers here are closely watching events in the Rhineland, where the movement to break away from Prussia has assumed substantial proportions. In well-informed circles General Mangin, commander of the French army of occupation, is credited with having brought about the establishment of the republic of the Rhineland, which has enraged the Ebert government. Miniature disorders have broken out in the Rhineland. A French officer has been beaten to death.

INDICT 2 ON DEATH CHARGE AT NEW BEDFORD

New Bedford, June 6.—Two indictments for murder were returned by the grand jury here. William McLam of New York city, a deck hand on the barge Pequonnock, charged with killing a shipmate over a row resulting from a card game, was one of those indicted. The other was Manuel Teixeira whom the police allege gave cyanide of potassium to an illegitimate child when its mother threatened Teixeira's arrest.

Talk of New "Missing Link" Translated

New York, June 6.—"Waalhooa! Waalhoo-hooa!"—"Where are you, dear?"

"Ahoo-ahoo! Ahoo-oo-hoo-oo!"—"Over this way, honey."

"Qhui-quhi-qhui!"—"Wait there a moment, sweet, I want to join you."

"Euhn—euhn—euhn!"—"Come to this palm tree, light of my life. I await you—oh, so eagerly!"

Anything familiar in this, you who stroll through the parks late o' nights? It is the latest loving chit-chat of the fastidious denizens of the jungle who swing from the palm trees by tails that are stronger than this yarn.

BACK FROM JUNGLE.

The new "tender talk" of the jungle was brought to New York by Professor Richard Lynch Garner, who has passed the major portion of his seventy-two years (by preference he asserts with a grin) among the monkeys and the birds. The professor—dauntless of spirit as of yore, although a bit worn in health—arrived on the Chicago after two and one-half years in the French Congo. He is staying at the Hotel Arlington.

He brought 1,000 specimens of buffalo, elephants, birds, gorillas, chimpanzees, apes and monkeys for the Smithsonian Institute. Among them, he said proudly, was the third finest gorilla in the world ("five feet four inches, sir") and a stuffed animal of the chimpanzee-gorilla species, of which he said:

"This fellow possessed the highest grade of intelligence I have met with in eight trips to the jungle. He was 160 pounds in weight, more than five feet tall and has a skull almost like a man. My native gun leader shot him after we had trailed him for weeks, and lured him with the simulated 'Waalhooa' [illegible] call of his mate.

LIKENS MONKEY TO CHILD.

"If I could have gotten him alive I would have done better with him than with Susie, the young chimpanzee, who died at the Bronx Zoo four years ago. Susie could select six colors and obeyed at least 100 commands. This fellow, I am sure, would prove to have the mental development of a young child."

Dr. Garner's still and motion picture cameras never reached him, but he made a large number of monkey and chimpanzee phonograph records. He said he was not able to bring back any live specimens because of the prohibition of the government on importations of animals for other than breeding purposes. Asked if he thought his stuffed chimpanzee man was the "missing link," he fondled his gray moustache a moment and replied:

"No, sir, I didn't. But this chap is as close to what some naturalists have called the 'missing link' as anything I have ever seen. Personally I don't believe in the 'missing link's' existence. But it makes you ponder when you are able to definitely translate three or four words of a jungle creature's talk into English."

TWO BATHS A DAY KEEP DOCTOR FROM BABY

Guard Infants Closely in Hot Weather, State Physician Warns Mothers

Give baby less food and more water.

Bathe baby twice daily.

Dry thoroughly.

Protect baby from flies and mosquitoes.

Call a doctor immediately if baby becomes sick.

When possible feed baby breast milk.

If cow's milk is used, be sure it is pure.

"Hundreds of babies can be saved from suffering and death during the hot waves if mothers will observe a few simple rules for food and care," Dr. Richard M. Smith of the State health department told an audience of public health nurses at the State House. "The increased loss of infant life in the Summer is due chiefly to diarrhoeal diseases," Dr. Smith said.

"Milk which sours unless it is kept cold often causes this trouble," he said. "Flies, too, bring the disease germs from one place to another and the heat makes the babies less able to resist the disease they carry."

That every baby should be nursed for at least seven and for ten months preferably was the advice of the physician. After the first year deaths are more frequent, he stated, because infant's food becomes more varied. Therefore he should be safeguarded through the first summer by mother's milk and through the perilous second by careful supervision.

"Mothers should either buy milk which is pasteurized or else pasteurize it at home," he said. "It should be kept cold and be protected from dirt and flies. In very hot weather when baby is taking milk from a bottle it is best to dilute with one-quarter the amount of boiled water.

"Be sure that baby has all the water to drink that he desires," he warned. "Give him a bath at least once a day. During the middle of the day it is well to remove practically all clothing."

THREATENED ICE FAMINE IS AVERTED

Thousands of Tons Arrive in Boston After Having Been Held Up by Railroads

The ice famine with which Boston was threatened yesterday disappeared today, thousands of tons arriving to care for suffering humanity.

For seven hours yesterday—8 a. m. to 3 p. m.—no ice was delivered in Boston proper and many of its suburbs. Some of the sections that suffered were Somerville, East Boston, Chelsea, Jamaica Plain, Roxbury, Dorchester and Brookline.

An official of the Boston Ice Company said this condition was due to two causes, failure of the railroads to return empty cars and the side-tracking at Lowell of many cars of ice consigned to Boston. The ice side-tracked at Lowell was due in Boston at 4 to 5 a. m., but it was 3 p. m. before it arrived.

Many Brookline residents were compelled to go to ice houses several miles distant and bring back ice in their high-priced touring cars and limousines in order to keep their food from spoiling.

HERO TEACHER HONORED BY B.U. PUBLICATION

"Hub," Just Out, Dedicated to W. O. Ault, First Instructor to Enlist

The "Hub" is out. Boston University students at the College of Liberal Arts have waited long for the current year book, and when the somber purple with gilt lettering arrived, there was a rush for the Boston office, where the "Hub" was distributed.

This year's "Hub," which the junior class of the College of Liberal Arts publishes annually, is dedicated to Warren O. Ault, instructor in history, who was the first Boston University instructor to enlist in the war. Mr. Ault won his commission as second lieutenant in the Training Battery, F. A. C. O. T. S., West Point, Kentucky.

The "Hub," which is a 200-page volume, contains individual pictures of the faculty with appropriate verses. For the seniors there are complimentary quotations, a list of the organizations with which they have been connected, their addresses, "prep" schools and sororities or fraternities.

Group pictures of officers of class and college organizations, fraternity and sorority groups, basketball teams and the names and addresses of sophomores and freshmen are also found.

The roll of honor of the College of Liberal Arts, and the roster of the Students' Army Training Corps and Naval Unit, occupy a place in the "Hub," with pictures.

The staff which has worked hard in getting out the 1920 "Hub" is headed by Esther V. Thurston of Middleboro. Her co-workers are Gladys S. Fait, literary editor; Gertrude Halbritter, art editor; Phyllis H. Addison, Ruth P. Kimball, Hilda S. Murray, Leona M. Peabody, Ruth C. Roberts, A. Dorothea Truitt, Marion A. Wheeler, Genevieve R. Wilde, associate editors. Miss Ruth McAllister of Auburndale is business manager, assisted by Angelica J. Funai and Elisa V. Marshall.

The war made it impossible for the men of the class of 1920 to accept positions on the "Hub" staff, hence the board of editors is entirely feminine.

JANITORS SCARCE, SO THE 'T. B. M.' WASHES WINDOWS

Omaha, Neb., June 6.—Janitors are so scarce in Omaha that business men have to do their own window washing. At least, that was the reason why pedestrians along Fifteenth and Farnam streets the other morning were amused when they saw Isaac Kahn, president of the McGrath Stationery Company, calmly washing the windows of the store.

"Democracy's a wonderful thing, isn't it?" said one man to another, as they watched the performance.

"You're wrong," said Mr. Kahn, who overheard it, "there's a shortage of janitors and besides it's good exercise."

JOKERS CUT FILMS AND "FANS" GET BLANK SCENE

New Wilmington, Pa., June 6.—Practical jokers had their inning here on a recent Saturday night and movie goers were the victims.

Nearly 700 feet of thrilling Wild West films were clipped by the censor jokers.

When Bill had killed seven or eight lowly Mexicans and had meritoriously earned a mortgage on the hand of the heroine the audience was given a blank scene and was obliged to use imagination as to what happened under those circumstances.

Now the Time to Build; Prices Won't Drop, Say Experts

"BUILD NOW, BOSTON! Don't be left in the lurch. The Middle West is building fast. Why cannot we have building here?"

This is the sentiment of State Senator James F. Cavanagh, president of the Northway Motors, Inc., a concern that is setting the example to BUILD NOW. Senator Cavanagh has just returned from an extended tour of the Mid-West and is full of the Build Now idea.

"What's the use of waiting?" asks Senator Cavanagh. "If we wait for prices to lower we will lose just as much good and valuable time. Build Now!"

The Northway Motors Corporation is preparing a big BUILD NOW movement of its own in Natick, and today awards will be made for a structure in Natick which will add 60,000 additional square feet to the present factory space owned by the Northway Motors Corporation there.

"The additional building we are about to erect in Natick will be for the good of all," Senator Cavanagh said.

TO BUILD HOMES FOR WORKERS.

The Industrial Association of Natick, an organization composed of business men in that town who are mostly members of the Chamber of Commerce, has already bought a plot of nine acres opposite the new Northway building and this organization of business men is about to build a number of homes for workers. There will be first-class residences, plenty of light, air and space between buildings, and the occupant of each building will have the option of purchasing his home outright, paying for it by installments or paying rent for it.

The new 60,000-square foot building will cost $200,000 and will be an addition to the present 50,000-square foot structure. Both buildings will be on the shores of Lake Cochituate. In their construction and also in their operation discharged soldiers and sailors will have preference of employment. The factory will employ in the neighborhood of 500 men in the next two or three months.

"The reason we are building now," said Senator Cavanagh, "is simply because we realize that now is the time to build. The man who needs a home or a mercantile plant should BUILD NOW for the delay in building will figure with his loss and not with his profit. There is no use for one to wait for prices to drop. Everybody knows they won't. And the point is that the time lost in waiting to build will not ultimately be worth the amount of valuable time wasted in mere waiting."

PRAISE WORK OF AMERICAN.

M. S. Beebe, sales manager of the corporation, is equally confident that we should BUILD NOW to keep space of the times and to keep up with the building that is going forward in the Middle West.

"The Boston American is doing a work of civic betterment by urging people to build now," Mr. Beebe said. "We must instill into the minds of the people the advantages of building now instead of waiting. To my mind skilled mechanics will go where the conditions are best and under the present conditions they will be led to the Middle West. If a mechanic is offered a job in Boston and another job in the Middle West, both paying the same salary, he would naturally turn toward the Mid-West where the living conditions are better. In other words we here are likely to lose some of our best men. We are not building homes for them; we offer them little or no attraction. But why do we not do so?

"The Boston American is fighting the 'Red' idea by trying to convince people to build up, and to Build Now. Building Now is the greatest weapon against discontent and Bolsheveism. The people must have homes—must have good homes. The factories must have plants to meet the increasing demands of their business. Therefore, why not BUILD NOW?"

Ralph E. Northway, chief engineer of the Northway concern, who was the builder of the first Ford motor ever used, believes in surrounding the worker with as near as may be ideal living conditions, believing that this brings greater efficiency in the plant, better home conditions and a better feeling of contentment throughout.

"Employers realize the need of better homes for their employes near their work," he said.

MUST HAVE FIT PEACE.

"When people say it is foolish to build now they might as well say it is foolish to buy clothes now," he said. "People must have clothes. Of course they can get along with their old clothes, but it isn't good business—it isn't a feeling that makes for happiness. It is the same with the home. It all simmers down to this, that you must have clothes and you must have a fit place to live in.

Manager Beebe chimed in to say that the tendency in the United States is to BUILD NOW.

"There is a feeling throughout the country for better places to live in and if we do not have these we will have the spirit of discontent, of so-called reform, of dissension and Russian Redism.

"The 'live' cities are proving their appreciation of the slogan BUILD NOW. Look at the cities of the West. We here are not keeping up with the Middle West in building, and I tell you the situation is serious, because we are likely to lose some of our best and most useful citizens. It is only a matter of a short time until we all come to realize the great futility of evading the slogan, or warning, to BUILD NOW!"

HARVARD BUYS DRILL HALL FOR NEW SCHOOL

Harvard University has completed the purchase from the Navy Department of the large drill hall formerly used by the Naval Radio School while it was in session at Cambridge during the war. Negotiations for this purchase have been under way for some time.

It was announced at the university office that the drill hall will at once be turned over to the newly established Harvard Engineering School for use as a laboratory for mechanical engineering. It is a large building, 280 feet long and 100 feet wide, with a power house immediately adjacent to it, located on the so-called Palfrey estate, on Oxford street, Cambridge, just north of Conant Hall.

Tech Student Injured While Mixing Wrong Acids

As a result of an unpermitted experiment during class an ambitious Technology freshman was painfully injured. The experimenter, his name being withheld by the instructor, tried to make a so-called "driftwood blaze" in the chemistry laboratory by mixing potassium chlorate, sugar and copper-chloride in a mortar without the consent of the instructor. An explosion resulted, sending bits of the mortar sixty to seventy feet, except where the pieces were stopped by the students themselves. The most seriously wounded was the experimenter, who was cut in the face and hands. He was taken to a nearby hospital where the pieces were removed. It was one of the most serious explosions which has occurred in the laboratories at Technology.

ASK BOY SCOUTS TO ROUT OUT TREE PESTS

June Drive Begins on "Tent" Caterpillars and Other Leaf Eaters

Washington, June 6.—Boy Scouts, attention! The big drive to get the "tent" caterpillars, those webby things that hang in the trees in June, is on. This is the game at which the Boy Scouts have had the best kind of fun, says the American Forestry Magazine, which urges that organizations be effected to block formations in order to rid the trees of the pests.

"The tents," says the magazine, "are common at this time on wild cherries, mulberries, willow and other trees. Apply a burning rag or torch to the web, or else squirt a little kerosene into the web. This should be done under proper supervision in every case."

Other suggestions for June follow: Spray for leaf-eating insects, for most of them commence defoliation at the end of May.

Hickory trees infested with the hickory bark borer should be removed and destroyed, for the beetles emerge early in June and proceed to other trees. Look for the fine holes in the bark and the fine sawdust that is ejected.

Spraying for sucking insects is urged and advice along these lines will be gladly given to any who write to the American Forestry Association, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp for answer. In almost any group of trees will be found branches that have died during the Winter. These can be removed now and the resulting wounds covered with coal tar.

SEARCH YARMOUTH SHIP FOR RUNAWAY GIRL

When the steamer North Star reached her berth at Central Wharf from Yarmouth, N. S., she was boarded by immigration officials in search of a seventeen-year-old girl, whose name they would not disclose. The girl disappeared from her home in Yarmouth a few days ago and her relatives feeling certain that she had planned to go to Boston wired the authorities here of her supposed intention.

None of the 800 passengers on the steamer were permitted to go ashore until a thorough search had been made for the missing girl. No one answering the description of the runaway could be found on the ship.

Kansas City Chief Warns "Reds" to Keep Away

Kansas City, Mo., June 6.—"Bolshevists, I. W. W.'s, Anarchists and Radical Socialists, beware! Keep away from Kansas City. Hold your meeting in Kansas City at your peril!"

This is the warning of Chief of Police Scott A. Godley, and he means it, too. The statement was made following the report of a recent meeting of the radical elements of Kansas City here.

"There will be wholesale arrests the next time a 'Red' gathering is held here," the chief continued. "We'll keep Kansas City clean if we have to comb every building. Bolshevists, I. W. W.'s, Anarchists and others should learn that the welcome sign is not and never has been hung out for them in Kansas City.

The speaker was one of our merchandise chiefs. He had been commenting on the success of his dress business on one of those torrid days, when it seemed too hot for a woman to get up energy enough to shop!

One reason for Filene values is the eternal vigilance, the untiring energy, the will to do something better.

STATE CAUCUS OF LEGION OPENS

Colonel Herbert Presides at Big Veterans' Meeting in Worcester

By SEGT. MAJ. G. F. GILBODY.

Worcester, June 6.—The State caucus of the American Legion was opened today in the Bancroft Hotel by Colonel John F. J. Herbert, former commander of the 102nd Field Artillery of the Yankee Division and Massachusetts chairman of the Legion. All the delegates who represented Massachusetts at the national caucus of the Legion in St. Louis last month were present. Prominent military and naval men in the State were on hand; generals and privates, commanders and "gobs" all rubbing elbows and "mistering" one another about the hall.

The temporary preamble and constitution of the Legion, adopted at the St. Louis caucus last month, was read. Other business includes the election of State officers, issuance of charters to posts already organized and adoption of a State constitution.

There are rumors that several candidates are being groomed to oppose Colonel Herbert for the chairmanship of Massachusetts. Major Louis A. Frothingham, former Lieutenant-Governor, is being talked of for the job in some quarters, and Major Root of the 102d Field Artillery is also in the field.

ROOT "OVERLOOKED."

Root claims that at the first caucus of the Legion held in Paris last March he was elected a delegate to the American caucus and when this was called last month he was "overlooked." Many of the delegates give little credence to this story, as the veterans at the Paris caucus know that the election of delegates at that time to the American caucus was given little consideration. As a matter of fact, only three of the Bay State delegates who went to St. Louis attended the Paris caucus.

Some of the delegates charge the attempt to stir friction to the "swivel chair artists from Boston" and when the election of officers comes up tonight there may be some merry little tilts.

Whoever takes on the task to defeat Colonel Herbert for the chairmanship has a big job ahead as he is immensely popular because of his spirited and well-timed activities at St. Louis.

Rev. Lyman Rollins, rector of St. Michael's Church, Marblehead, and chaplain of "Boston's Own," is being strongly talked of for the office of State chaplain. Chaplain Rollins undoubtedly will have the support of the Yankee Division delegates if he consents to entertain the office and becomes a candidate

CONTEST FOR HEADQUARTERS.

And enlisted man of the army or navy will undoubtedly be elected vice-commander of the Massachusetts Legion, as that is the consensus of opinion among the delegates. The question of the location of the permanent headquarters of the Legion will also open up a warm debate, as the western delegates are rooting hard for Springfield. Many others are in favor of having the headquarters in Worcester. The Bostonians, of course, can see nothing but Boston.

Colonel E. Lester Jones, commander of George Washington Post No. 1 of Washington, D. C., is endeavoring to interest the delegates in the proposed National Victory Memorial Building to be erected by the George Washington Association on land granted by Congress.

A nation-wide drive will begin on June 23 to raise $9,000,000 for the building. Almost $1,000,000 already has been subscribed. The plan has the unqualified approval of President Wilson. Colonel Jones says that the experience George Washington Post No. 1 already has had shows the need for a big meeting place in Washington, because it is an ideal city for gatherings of every kind. People who attend such gatherings will be able to see the government buildings and museums and to take sight-seeing trips through the most beautiful city in the world.

Legion Men Demand Public Work Contracts Be Given to None But Americans

A resolution, adopted at the formation of Francis J. Kane Post of the American Legion, in the Ward 18 wardroom, Dorchester, demanding that no State, municipal or county contract be awarded to anyone not a citizen of the country, was presented to Governor Coolidge today by Councilor Lewis R. Sullivan.

The resolution is as follows:

"We, the members of the Francis J. Kane Post of the American Legion, assembled in the wardroom, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, resolve that it is the sense of this meeting that no State, city, county or public service contract shall be awarded any person other than one who is a citizen of the United States by birth or by completion of naturalization. Also that no contract shall be awarded to any corporation unless its officers and directors are citizens as above described; and

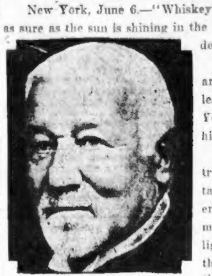
"Be it further resolved, that it is the belief of all present that the contracts, as described above, shall be awarded only to those who are unqualified 100 per cent. Americans."

The speakers at the meeting included J. Walter Mullin, Captain Daniel O'Connell, Councillor Lewis R. Sullivan and John A. Anderson.

Walter Walsh, John Nolan and Daniel T. O'Connell are delegates to the State caucus of the legion held today in Worcester. The next meeting of Francis Kane Post will be held in the wardroom, June 19.

Wines and Beer Best for All, Says Croker

New York, June 6.—"Whiskey is poison and a curse, but as sure as the sun is shining in the heavens, prohibition will be defeated by the people."



RICHARD CROKER.

With this comment, Richard Croker, once Tammany leader and "boss" of New York, sailed for Ireland with his wife on the Carmania.

"The people of this country will not tolerate any curtailment of their personal liberties," he said. "The happy medium for this country is light wines and beers, and that is what it will come to in the near future.

The Crokers are returning to their Glencairn estate in Ireland, after their visit in America, which they "thoroughly enjoyed."

VETERANS OF SPANISH WAR AGAINST LEAGUE

Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 6.—Spanish War veterans, in convention here, adopted the report of a committee calling on Iowa members of Congress to oppose ratification of the League of Nations. Their objection is based on an argument that the proposed league threatens the sovereignty of the United States.

RED CROSS IS SELLING ITS KNITTING MACHINES

Worcester, June 6.—Have you a little knitting machine in your home? If not, you can get one at a bargain from the local chapter of the American Red Cross. The machines that for months have been turning out socks for soldiers are to be sold at mark-down prices. Mothers whose men-folk are "hard on their socks," or who have a large family of youngsters, may set up a home knitting industry at small expense.

CARRANZA TO PROTECT AMERICANS IN SONORA

Washington, June 6.—President Carranza of Mexico telegraphed the State Department today that he would make every effort to protect American lives and property which are threatened in the western part of the State of Sonora by the Yaqui Indians. Carranza's communication is in reply to an urgent message of the State Department, sent three days ago, that Americans in Sonora had been clamoring for protection.

500 PARTICIPATE IN BROOKLINE EXERCISES

Outdoor and Indoor Programs at High School Graduation

More than 500 pupils of the Brookline High School took part in the graduating exercises today. There was an outdoor program on the Cypress street playground, followed by indoor ceremonies in Shaller Hall, in the school building. Girls, dressed in various costumes according to the different classes, made the scene picturesque.

To the music of a band, the students marched from the school building, the boys leading. Boys of the senior class and the boy marshals were dressed in white duck trousers, dark coats and straw hats. The others wore all white suits, with black ties. Following came the twelve girl marshals of the junior class, carrying wreaths and wearing hats of gray trimmed with gray ostrich feathers, and a touch of red, the class colors. Girls of the senior class followed, wearing orange and black, the '19 colors, and carrying hollyhock sticks. Those of other classes wore white middy blouses, black ties and white shoes.

FORMED LIVING NUMBERS.

After the march to the playground, the senior girls formed the letters and numerals "B. H. S. '19," while those of the other classes stood in formation of the Roman numerals XIX.

A regimental review by the boys followed and a drill by the senior boys, with a salute to the flag. The column then marched to the building, where the letters and numerals were formed on the steps and cheers were given for the seniors and the faculty. Returning to the playground, there were tugs of war, an English pastoral dance by senior girls, relay races, a final march to the school grounds and planting of the class ivy. The indoor exercises followed.

GIRLS AS BANNER BEARERS.

The banner bearers of the senior class were Ilma Woods, Maxine Nichols, Priscilla Hall; for the juniors, Eva Clark, Priscilla Rogers, Wilhelmina Albrecht; for the sophomores, Charlotte Potter, Velma Hutchinson, Helen Jackson; for the freshmen, Frances Brown, Madeline McSkimmon, Elsie Maxon. The boy marshals were Bickford, Boehner, Botton, Cartsens, Donovan, Faulkner, Folin, Johnson, Kenney, McMillan, McMahan, McSweeney, Mullowney, Norton, O'Hearn, Plaisted, D. Richardson, Phil Richardson, Stevens and Taylor.

The girl marshals included Harriet Taylor, Alice Jameson, Wilhelmina Albrecht, Doris Dalton, Dorothy Weber, Priscilla Rogers, Agnes Morrison and Miss Shepard.

The indoor exercises included the address of welcome by Charles M. O'Hearn, president of the graduating class; class oration by John McSweeney, class poem by Edna Shepard, class history by Robert McMillan, presentation of banner and colors to the freshmen by the president, Charles M. O'Hearn; the class prophecy by Page Williams and Conrad Sallinger, and the class song.

NEW BEDFORD STRIKE SETTLED, 40,000 RETURN

New Bedford, June 6.—The return of the 40,000 striking employes of the New Bedford mills within a few hours is the result of a settlement of the three weeks' strike, which came today after a conference between members of the textile council and the manufacturers' association.

The conference lasted from 9 o'clock until 11:30. At its conclusion it was stated that important concessions had been made on both sides.

The strike began three weeks ago, when the engineers struck for a higher wage scale. A sympathetic strike of all workers in the mills threw 40,000 people out of employment and paralyzed the business of the city.

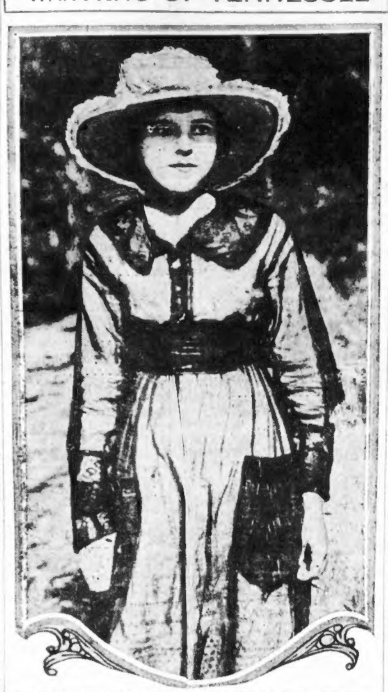
B. U. GIRLS WILL HAVE "BACON BAT"

A "bacon bat" and games on the beach at Marblehead are the entertainment for the Girls' Athletic Association of the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University tomorrow. Miss Rachel L. Hardwick, director of physical instruction for women, and Miss Ruth Duffey, instructor and basketball coach, will be hostesses to some fifteen B. U. girls for the day.

15 PLANES WILL SOAR OVER LENOX ON JULY 4

Lenox, June 6.—Courtlandt Field Bishop of New York and Lenox, vice-president of the Aero Club of America, today announced that he had arranged to have fifteen aeroplanes soar over the town of Lenox on July 4. He is investigating different fields here, in order to select a suitable one for landing of the machines.

OUTDOOR WEDDING FOR WAR HERO OF TENNESSEE



Grace Williams, bride-to-be of Sergeant Alvin C. York; Tennessee mountaineer was hero. Wedding ceremony takes place tomorrow, Governor Roberts officiating.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 6.—In the midst of throngs of mountaineers, his friends and townsfolk, Sergeant Alvin Cullom York, hero of the Argonne, and Miss Grace Williams will be married tomorrow afternoon at Pall Mall. A big basket dinner will be given for all the mountain friends of the war veteran, and the marriage ceremony will be performed by Governor A. H. Roberts in the open air. This was announced by Pastor R. C. Pile, of the Church of Christ and Christian Union.

Pastor Pile is playing an important role in the home-coming and future plans of Sergeant York. The sergeant has been deluged with offers which Pastor Pile is working seven days a week to defeat. One manager offered York $1000 for 30 weeks to appear on the stage with thirty-five beauties of the footlights.

"If York accepted that offer he would be turned out of our church immediately," declared Pastor Pile. "This theatrical business is against our religion and the church would not stand for it. But York and I have talked the matter over and he assured me that not for a moment would he even consider such a proposition. He wouldn't think of going on the stage with a bunch of chorus girls wearing tights."

But the public may have a chance to gaze upon the man who captured several dozen Germans single-handed, for all that. Pastor Pile sees no reason why Sergeant York should not go on the lecture platform, in partnership with the clergyman himself. In the meantime, Sergeant York's thoughts are all on his approaching wedding, and he is spending the last days of his bachelorhood in taking his girl a-buggy riding.

'KISSLESS BRIDE' MAY NOW BE KISSED

By International News Service.

New York, June 6.—The secret romance of Virginia Blair Reeves Warner, Washington and Philadelphia society bud, and Henry H. Warner, inspector at the Hog Island shipyard, came to an end today when a referee recommended the annulment of the marriage of the inspector and his "kissless bride."

Mrs. Warner is the stepdaughter of Commander Archibald L. Parsons of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. She made her debut in 1916 after graduating from a girls' school. On June 15, 1917, she motored to New York with Warner from a house party at Montclair, N. J., and was married.

Warner returned to his work in the shipyards and his bride to the home of her chum, Agnes Peppler in Philadelphia. They told no one of their marriage, and when Warner met her later at her parent's home in Washington he did not even kiss her for fear that her mother would suspect that they were in love.

HARVARD PRIZE POETS FAILED TO QUALIFY

Harvard's crop of aspiring poets has failed to sprout this year in spite of a most inspiring incentive. The Lloyd McKim Garrison prize of $100 and a silver medal will not be awarded because Professors George Baker, Barrett Wendell and John Lowes did not believe that the poems offered in the competition were worthy of the prize. The prize is offered annually for the best poem on a certain subject chosen by the committee. The subject this year was to deal with the Second Battle of the Marne.

U. S. PUBLICITY BRANCH QUITS JUNE 15

President Wilson Would Like to Continue It, but Fears Republican Congress

By International News Service

Washington, June 6.—The committee on public information will cease two weeks between June 15 and July will go out of existence entirely, it was learned today.

Orders have been issued to those connected with the foreign service of the committee to start for home not later than the former date. The two weeks between June 15 and July 1 will be devoted to closing up accounts and "gathering up the loose ends."

Informal advices reaching Washington have indicated that President Wilson is loathe to have the government left without any publicity branch whatever. He is said to favor strongly the temporary continuance of the committee on public information in view of the fact that other governments—notably the British and French—will not cease to have similar organizations send out national propaganda broadcast.

However, the President is reported to have confided to close friends that he would not himself recommend that the committee be retained in view of the hostility that such a move would meet from the Republican Congress.

The committee, ever since its establishment shortly after the United States entered the world war, has been a target for Republicans in Congress, and there seemed little likelihood that retention of the organization would be sanctioned by that body now that it has passed into Republican control.

The committee has handled much of the routine news coming out of Paris, such as official statements and set speeches, thus obviating duplication and relieving congestion on the already overcrowded wires. As the Navy Department, with its radio stations, is about the only department equipped to do work of this sort, it is understood that efforts are already being made to have Secretary Daniels place the facilities of his department at the disposal of the government for the remaining days of the peace conference.

ARMY SPEEDS PLAN TO MAKE ALIENS CITIZENS

Washington, June 6.—The War Department is expediting a plan by which aliens who have not taken out their first papers may become full-fledged citizens of the United States two years ahead of the period in which they could qualify under the civil law.

The War Department believes that within three months the non-speaking alien can be taught sufficient English and that within six months he can be made a good soldier.

TWO SOLDIERS A. W. O. L. CHARGED WITH HOLDUP

Springfield, June 6.—Charged with having held up and robbed David R. Lloyd of Bridgeport, Ct., at Milford, Ct., William P. Brown, aged 23, and Miles Hoag, aged 25, soldiers A. W. O. L., from Fort Slocum, N. Y., were arrested here early today. A new automobile, found in their possession, is said to be the one in which Lloyd had driven the soldiers from Bridgeport to Milford.

SANITY TEST FOR 5-YEAR-OLD IN BABY'S DEATH

Mother Sobs on Agreement to Take Peeper Boy to Psychopathic Ward

Freeman Peeper, the five-year-old East Boston boy who is charged by the police with causing the death of the three-weeks-old infant, Leroy Smart, by hurling him from a window, is to be examined for his sanity at the Psychopathic Hospital in Brookline.

Mrs. Rhoda Peeper, mother of the child, between sobs and tears, promised Clerk William C. Maguire of the East Boston Court, that she would take him there today, after the case had been heard at the juvenile session of the court.

Mrs. Peeper told Clerk Maguire, Sergeant Daniel J. Sweeney and Fred L. O'Brien of prenatal conditions that she believed had something to do with the child's condition, and said that he had frequently "acted queer" and that he was constantly "making faces." During the hearing the child was very restless and required constant reprimands from the mother to keep him in order.

Mrs. Pepper requested permission of the court to await the return of the child's father from Buffalo, before taking any action, but the court overruled her objection and made arrangements for an examination to take place at once.

SANITARIUM AT NORTH READING DECLARED CLEAN

Wakefield, June 6.—Following an investigation of conditions at the North Reading Sanitarium, conducted by Simon Swig, a member of the board of trustees of the Rutland Sanitarium, Arthur K. Storm, chairman of the board of trustees, and Alvin G. Bliss, chairman of public health in Massachusetts and also chairman of the investigating committee at the Rutland Sanitarium, members of the board announced that they had found the North Reading institution to be in perfect order, well supplied with food, and thoroughly clean.

"Water Gun Bandit" Caught

Springfield, Ill., June 6.—This city has a "water gun bandit." He is Lee Burton, colored, arrested for holding up persons with an automatic pistol that squirted water instead of bullets.

ILLEGAL FOR MAINE TO OWN RESERVOIRS

Augusta, Me., June 6.—That it would be illegal for the State to establish water power storage reservoirs or to tax persons who have already developed such reservoirs, is the opinion of the judges of the Maine Supreme Court who gave a formal reply to questions propounded at the last session of the Legislature.

The decision says: "In all opinions taxation for this purpose (establishing storage reservoirs), either directly or indirectly, is beyond the constitutional powers of the Legislature to authorize.

"In other words, a State is certainly a political unit and not a business corporation except incidentally to further its political purposes. In its organization and machinery it is not adapted to acquire, own, manage, or make a profit out of land or other property except for public uses."

Both Shoes and Heels Are to Be Worn Low Cut

New York, June 6.—Oxfords, pumps and lower heels, both in leather and wood, will be the vogue in 1920, due to the high cost of leather.

This was decided by the allied council of the American Shoe and leather industries and trades, meeting here. Andrew C. McGowin of Philadelphia was chosen president.

Fred A. Vogel, head of the tanners' council, urged manufacturers to purchase leather conservatively and to advocate more general wear of low shoes by both men and women.

UXBRIDGE PARENTS HEAR SON DIED MONTHS AGO

Uxbridge, June 6.—Lieutenant Horton B. Taft, son of Attorney and Mrs. Samuel B. Taft, Prospect street, was killed early in August, 1918, according to a telegram received from the Adjutant General's office. The message stated the cause was unknown. Months ago the parents of the boy got word their son was missing. He was a graduate of Colby University and Uxbridge High School.

$110,000 WORTH OF RUM IS SAVED FROM FLAMES

When fire partially destroyed a storehouse owned by Daniel E. Chase & Co., in Somerville, 150 hogsheads of rum, valued at $110,000, were saved by the firemen. The company, which recently closed its distillery, shipped rum to Africa and the West Indies for many years.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL
Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who."

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation to warrant the recommendation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft, curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M. D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic, or run-down take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nervine and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION—Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh. —Advertisement.

Requests have been made to the War Department for authority to discharge or furlough to the reserve men who enlisted prior to April 1, 1917, and who return to the United States accompanied by foreign wives whom they married overseas.

The War Department has replied that it is not the present policy to broaden the classes of enlisted men for furlough to the reserve and that the cases of all such soldiers will be considered with others.

JEWELER'S "GEM" SEEKS SEPARATION

New York, June 6—"When I became the wife of Ralph Dreyfus, who is in the jewelry business, he told me I was a gem," said Mrs. Dreyfus, who filed a suit for separation in the county clerk's office. Apparently "the gem" soon ceased to sparkle for him, for she says her husband in addition to using an ash tray on her, had bombarded her with salad, a pitcher of ice water and shoes. She alleges he "forbade her to attend her dying mother."

AMENDMENT ON WAY TO STATE HOUSE

Suffrage Measure Will Reach Legislature Monday for Action on Ratification

Massachusetts may be the first State in the Union to ratify the national woman suffrage amendment, political leaders said today. The amendment is in transit to this State, Governor Coolidge announced, and will be delivered to both branches of the Legislature Monday.

The amendment will then go to the Joint Legislative Committee on Federal Relations, which will conduct public hearings and make a report to both houses, after which comes the vote of the full Legislature.

Worcester, June 6—The Women's Trade Union League of this city has sent a petition to the State Legislature asking for ratification of the suffrage amendment. The League urges that Massachusetts be the first State to ratify the amendment.

RULES FOR CARE OF HORSES IN HOT WEATHER

Instructions for watering and Feeding Issued by President of Work Horse Association

Hot weather rules for the care of horses have been issued by the Boston Work Horse Relief Association, Henry C. Merwin, president. They give the following instructions for watering, feeding and taking care of horses overcome by the heat:

1—Load lightly and drive slowly.

2—Stop in the shade if possible.

3—Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.

4. When he comes in after word, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth and the dock. Wash his feet, but not his legs.

5. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.

6. Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm, and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.

7. Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.

8—A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.

9—If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

10—If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

11. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

12. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

REFUSED $10 BY FATHER, BOY SHOOTS HIMSELF

When his father refused to give him $10, Elmer C. Burrill, eighteen, of No. 5 Upton court, Brighton, went to his room and fired a shot into the calf of his leg. The other bullets fired by him were found imbedded in the wall.

The young man is said to have been drinking, and when he asked for the money was told that he would have to wait until the morning for it. A few minutes later his father, James Burrill, heard the three shots.

The boy was found lying on a couch with blood streaming from his left leg. The Brighton police were notified and Burrill was sent to the City Hospital in the ambulance. At the hospital it was found he was suffering from a bullet wound in the calf of the left leg.

SEXTON HANGS HIMSELF IN BACK BAY CHURCH

With a strap around his neck, Henry L. Wildes, the fifty-two-year-old sexton of the South Congregational Church at Exeter and Newbury streets, was found dead, hanging from a door in the basement of the edifice. Lillian Gray, his landlady at No. 99 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, made the discovery. The heat was said to have unbalanced his mind. Wildes was the janitor of the Horace Mann School, across the street from the church. His wife is said to live in Winchester.

Home Wins Over Promotion

Cleveland, O., June 6.—"Home, sir!" was the answer of Sergeant William J. Ferguson, twenty, who wears the French war cross, the Distinguished Service Cross and the regimental citation of the Fifth Marines, when the Marine Commandant at Quantico asked: "Would you rather go to China as a second lieutenant or home on a furlough?"

C. M. Loeffler's Annual Concert at Medfield Attracted a Large Audience of Boston Society Favorites.

© PHOTOGRAPH BY GARO

Miss Augustine van Wickle, whose marriage to Mr. Quincy Adams Shaw, Jr., will take place on Tuesday, June 24, at the Old South Church. Miss Van Wickle is a member of the Vincent Club and Sewing Circle of 1916-17, and is a graduate of Miss May's school.

By SARA ORCUTT.

A large audience attended the annual concert given by C. M. Loeffler last night at the Unitarian Church at Medfield, the entire proceeds going to the relief work of the American Committee for Devastated France, of which Mrs. Robert W. Lovett of No. 7 Fairfield street is the New England chairman. Assisting artists were Madame Povla Galish, soprano; M. N. Snow, organist, and N. Gebhard, pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dwight and her son and daughter, Joseph Dwight and Miss Margaret Dwight, of Beacon street, have gone to their Nahant home where they will stay until October. Miss Dwight will open her tea room the last of this month. Last Summer the entire proceeds were given to the Red Cross.

CAPTAIN PUTS DOWN MUTINY ON WHALER

Two Germans in Irons After Fierce Battle Aboard New Bedford Ship

New Bedford, June 6.—With two men in irons, and several members of the crew badly battered as the result of attempted mutiny, the whaler Greyhound which left here last September for a cruise in southern waters, has put into the Barbadoes for repairs.

The story of the battle in which marlin spikes and butcher knives were used is contained in a letter to Mrs. Dollie Cruz, No. 68 Pierce street, whose son is cabin boy aboard the Greyhound.

The two alleged mutineers had signed up as Russians, but soon after putting out to sea admitted that they were Germans. The whaler was three miles off the coast of Brazil when a whale was sighted and three boats were lowered. With only nine left aboard, the two Germans began a reign of terror. The cook was felled with a hammer and the steward was beaten before he could break away and lock himself in the cabin. The seaman at the wheel was chased from his post.

The rest of the crew aboard ship locked themselves in the forecastle. The mutineers attacked the door with a sledgehammer and the noise attracted the attention of Captain Jose Cavelho. Despite the fact that the mutineers used a marlin spike and butcher knife to ward him off, he overpowered them alone.

At the Barbadoes, Captain Cavelho was unable to get any satisfaction in the courts because the offense was perpetuated by foreigners and had been committed in foreign waters. He took the trouble makers back aboard ship, still in irons, and announced his decision of bringing them to New Bedford, or Provincetown.

NEVER MISSED WRITING WEEKLY FOR 30 YEARS

Des Moines, Ia., June 6.—Lake Bower, a Des Moines automobile salesman, heads the honor roll for Mother's Day not only of Des Moines and Iowa, but the nation, it is believed here.

Lake, as he is known, has been away from home for thirty years. In all that time he has never missed a Sunday in writing to his mother or the folks at home.

"Nobody" Has Lucky Streak

San Francisco, June 6.—Michael Ryan, derelict, and according to his own estimate of himself, nobody, tramped Montgomery streets an entire day praying for a dime with which to buy coffee. Ryan picked up a check for $50,000 made payable to the Sacramento Northern Electric Company. He turned it over to its owner. As a reward Ryan got one dollar.

DEMAND PLACE FOR IRELAND IN LEAGUE

A. F. of L. Program for Convention Is Outlined

Atlantic City, N. J., June 6.—"Ireland has earned her independence from Great Britain and is entitled to as big a place in the proposed league of nations as any other small nation" was one of the declarations which spokesmen for nearly 5,000,000 American working men conferring here upon after-war readjustments and reconstruction will submit for adoption next week to the national convention of the America Federation of Labor, it was said here.

GOMPERS TO BE RE-ELECTED.

These deductios as to the program for the convention are warranted at the conclusion of Thursday's consultations:

That President Gompers, despite the "extremist" opposition and his recent physical affliction, will be re-elected.

That the federation will strive to rid itself of all persons and elements suspected of anarchist or other extremist teachings or practices.

Labor will go on record that the present high rate of wages shall be maintained; that the eight-hour law shall be preserved inviolate, and that no more than forty-eight hours shall constitute a week's work except in emergency.

That no child under sixteen shall be compelled to work and convict labor shall be prohibited.

WOMEN'S WAGES TO EQUAL MEN'S

That women shall be paid wages equal to those of men for equal work performed.

That involuntary servitude shall not exist except as a punishment for crime of which the accused has been convicted.

That food and rent profiteering must cease and that some practicable plan shall be devised to provide homes for workmen and their families at a reasonable price.

That the obnoxious second-class postal service revenue rate and zone law shall be repealed.

That President Wilson be importuned to remove Postmaster-General Burleson.

That Ireland has earned her independence from Great Britain.

That United States soldiers must not be used to shoot down wage earners who decline to submit to the injustice visited upon them by heartless employers.

DIVORCE DECREE IS GRANTED IN 7 MINUTES

Mrs. John G. Douglas Wins Suit in Record Session of Newport Court

Newport, R. I., June 6.—Reno has nothing on Newport for the granting of divorces, and Newport broke its own record today when in seven minutes a divorce was granted to Mrs. John Gordon Douglas of New York, Morristown, N. J., and here. Mrs. Douglas' seven-minute decree breaks the unusually fast record established here last December when Mrs. Beatrice Benjamin Pratt was divorced in nine minutes from Lieutenant Alexander D. B. Pratt of the United States Army.

Today's new seven-minute record was made possible by the expedient action of Judge Blodgett in the Superior Court. The decree was granted to Mrs. Douglas, who was formerly Anna Ward Kountze, at what was practically a secret session of the court and on the grounds of neglect to provide, although the papers in case allege "gross neglect to provide and extreme cruelty."

The 9 o'clock session of the court was said to be by pre-arrangement of Mrs. Douglas' attorney, William P. Sheffield, and the court, knowing that reporters do not regularly appear before the regular court hour of 9:30 o'clock.

For several days past Mrs. Douglas has been engaged in an effort to see what could be done to keep the testimony on her suit out of the newspapers.

Mrs. Douglas herself was evidently willing to press the charges of cruelty and neglect to provide in her suit, but at the same time she apparently did not want the public to read what the cruelty was, and the nature of which Newport society is anxious to know.

A straggler in the courtroom at the time of the record brief divorce hearing today, said the words as read or spoken by counsel not be heard. Former Mayor William McLeod represented Mr. Douglas.

Although the suit was brought partly on the grounds of extreme cruelty, the divorce was granted only on the grounds of neglect.

With a cargo of 50,000 mackerel in her hold, the first catch of the season, the steamship Nyoda arrived here today. The mackerel were caught off Halifax on Wednesday. The steamship Joppaite arrived with 20,000 pounds of mackerel, caught off Gay Head in Vineyard Sound. Another small catch was brought in from Vineyard Sound by another vessel. The price of mackerel is the lowest in recent years. They bring 6 1-3 cents per pound from the vessel to the wholesaler, and 7½ cents from the latter to the retailer.

DAYLIGHT SAVING MEANS HEALTH, SAY DOCTORS

"Daylight saving is a means of health," claims the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal. "It gives one hour more in the open air for people who are shut up in their oices during part of the day. It promotes spending a part of the day in cultivating a small patch of ground. The general health of people has been better since it has been inaugurated."

SALARY GRAB BILL VETOED BY GOVERNOR

Coolidge, in Message, Declares Legislators Are Voluntary Public Servants

compensation has been given in order that talent for service rather than the possession of property, might be the standard of membership.

"There is no man of sufficient talent in the Commonwealth so poor that he cannot serve for a session, which averages about five months and five days each week, at a salary of $1,000 and a travel allowance of $2.50 for each mile between his home and the State House. This is too clear for argument. There is no need to consider those who are too rich to serve for this sum. It would be futile to discuss whether the services are worth more or less than this, as that is not here the question.

STANDARD HARD TO FIX.

"Membership in the General Court is not a job. There are services rendered to the Commonwealth by Senators and Representatives that are priceless. For the searching out of great prin. criterion, there would be different based there is no adequate compensation.

"If value for services were the criterian, there would be different salaries. When membership is legislation will pass from public function to a private enterprise. Men do not serve here for pay. They seek work and places of responsibility and find in that seeking, not in their pay, their honor.

"The realities of life are not measured by dollars and cents. The skill of the physician, the divine eloquence of the clergy, the courage of the soldier, that which we call character in all men, are not matters of hire and salary. No person was ever honored for what he received. Honor has been the reward for what he gave.

FOR WHAT THEY GAVE.

"Public aclaim and the ceremonmonious recognition paid to returning heroes are not on account of their government pay, but of the service and sacrifice they gave their country.

"The place each member of the General Court will hold in the estimation of his constituents will never depend on his salary, but on the ability and integrity with which he does his duty; not on what he receives, but on what he gives, and only out of the bountifulness of his own giving will his constituents raise him to power. Not by indulging himself, but by denying himself will he reach success.

"It is because the General Court has recognized these principles in its past history that it has secured its high place as a legislative body. This act disregards all this and will ever appear to be an undertaking by members to raise their own salaries."

Senate for Joint Session to Discuss Amendment on Property Taxation

Plans for holding the first joint session of the Senate and House in the history of the State to consider a proposed amendment to the State constitution were launched in the Senate today.

Senator Nichols of Boston moved that the Senate invite the House to meet in joint session to consider an amendment which would allow the Legislature to classify property for the purpose of taxation. The motion was adopted. Action by the House will follow.

The Initiative and Referendum, in order to protect from the "whispering to death" of any proposed amendment in either the House or Senate, requires the joint session.

Senator Prescott of Grafton asked the Senate to call for a joint session to exclude "resolves which are not law-making in character" from the operation of the Initiative and Referendum, but the Senate rejected the motion.

The bill to abolish the Boston Finance Commission was referred by the Senate to the "next General Court." The House had already rejected the bill.

The petition of Dorchester citizens to abolish the grade crossing at the Bird street station on the New Haven road was dismissed by the Public Service Commission. The commission says it is without authority to act and that the petition should be addressed to the Boston City Council and to the Superior Court.

HELD FOR BOARDING SHIP BEFORE OFFICIALS

Charged with unlawfully boarding the Norwegian schooner, William Nottingham, before the ship had been inspected by the customs officials and the quarantine authorities, Peter Figenbaum of No. 161 Milk street, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. The case was continued for a hearing on June 12.

Figenbaum, who is a chandler, is alleged to have boarded the schooner on June 2, the schooner at the time having arrived from South Africa. Assistant United States Attorney Lewis Goldberg states that the defendant had been warned repeatedly not to go on board schooners prior to their being inspected by the Customs officials.

AGED WOMAN MISSING, FOUL PLAY FEARED

Miss Armine Littlefield, seventy-five, of No. 366 Highland avenue, West Somerville, is being sought for by her sister, Miss Hattie Abbey of the same address. Foul play is feared in that the woman is wealthy and is said to have carried a large sum of money at times on her person.

The woman left for Boston on last Tuesday. Yesterday a call came on the telephone saying that she was dangerously sick in a hospital. A search of the hospitals failed to locate her.

Worcester to Buy and Sell a Million Pounds of Bacon

Worcester, June 6.—Worcester is planning to buy a million pounds of bacon from the United States government for sale to the Worcester public at reduced prices. An order for the consideration of the purchase of this "war material" will be filed this week for consideration at the next meeting of the City Council.

Frank McGauley, president of the council, is of the opinion that the public of Worcester is entitled to any benefits in the line of price cuts which may be obtained rather than have the big packing firms buy the bacon and sell it to the public at present prices. The matter will come before the finance committee of the City Council.

ELEPHANTS AID FIELD DAY ON COMMON

Three from Franklin Park Will Do Stunts as Part of Red Cross Juniors' Entertainment

Thousands of school children from all parts of the Metropolitan District, all members of the Junior Auxiliary, American Red Cross, will gather on Boston Common at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the Junior Red Cross Field Day.

Mayor Peters has allotted a portion of the parade ground for the use of the children, and the Mayor himself will address them if his engagements permit.

Seventy-five officers and patrolmen of the Boston police and ten firemen will aid in taking care of the children.

The entertainment will open with rough-riding and various ground sports by members of the First Troop Cavalry, led by Captain Frank Wright and "Billy" Binder, former rough-rider of the West. This part of the program will last nearly three-quarters of an hour, after which there will be a band concert by DaVino's Band and singing by the children, led by Edward B. Aborn and George S. Dane of the War Camp Community Service.

From 3 to 3:30 o'clock the children's elephants from the Franklin Park Zoo—"Mollie," "Waddy" and "Tony"—will give a display of all their "curcus" stunts. A big ring will be roped off for the mounted sports and the performance of the elephants.

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter will have four first-aid tents and members of the Women's Volunteer Motor Corps will be on duty with two of the chapter ambulances. Red Cross girls will help take care of the juniors.

The Field Day is in charge of Mrs. George S. Derby and Miss Dorothy Forbes.

BELIEVE MAYOR WILL VETO SCHOOL TAX BILL

The impression prevails at City Hall that Mayor Peters will veto the legislative bill authorizing the city to provide 31 cents additional from this year's tax levy for school expenditures. This bill, which has been vigorously opposed by the Mayor, has been passed by the Senate. The next step will come in the form of its submission to the City Council.

The Mayor, in opposing the measure, declared the city's finances were in no shape to stand such a heavy increase in the funds appropriated for school purposes.

PAY YOUR POLL TAX OR GO TO JAIL

Nearly 500 Warrants Out for Delinquents in City of Boston

Two dollar poll tax dodgers—BEWARE!

Pay up or go to jail.

This is the final word from City Collector Frank S. Deland, and it's not the usual "bluff" or threat which emanates from the collector's office each year at about this time.

Here are the plain facts of the case.

About 500 warrants are now in the hands of constables to be served upon "slackers" in all sections of the city.

These constables have been ordered to place in jail all those who are disagreeable and refuse to pay their 1918 poll tax.

The constables are to use their judgment in the actual serving of the warrants. If you have cash in the house when the constable serves the warrant, it is best to pay up. It will cost you $2 for the original tax, a few cents interest, about 95 cents for the warrant, and transportation for the constable.

In some instances this has amounted to as much as $8, but the average is around $4 or $5.

The collector stated that only 20 per cent. of the poll taxes had been paid. His drive upon the city employes has been successful, only two departments now being behind, the public works and the hospital departments. Unless these delinquents "cash in" the tax will be deducted from their pay envelopes.

Real estate valued at $16,250,000 will be sold by the city about July 1 in order to collect back taxes amounting to $294,458. This is one of the largest sales of delinquent real estate made by the city in years.

BOSTON CHURCHES MAY CHANGE SERVICE HOUR

A movement is on foot among the churches of Greater Boston to have the last service on Sundays at 10 a. m. instead of 10:30 or 11 a. m. This change is urged during the warm weather. Several churches in New York have made this change and Boston churches are being urged to do the same.

On the same day, the German long range gun, concentrating its fire more accurately on the centre of Paris, exploded shells in the Hotel Scribe, one block from the opera and other central parts of the city.

Lexington Girl Is Killed by Falling Limb of Tree

The falling limb of an elm tree caused the death today of Ethel Andresen, 7½ years, of No. 42 Oak street, East Lexington, and injured two other children of a party of six on their way to school.

The limb, thirty-five feet long, fell on the head of the Andresen girl, and after being picked up by a passing autoist and rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital she died soon afterwards. Catherine Whalen and Harold Burbidge were the other two children hurt. Margaret Andresen, 9½ years old, sister of Ethel, was in the party, but was not hurt.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—The second pan-American financial congress will be convened by Secretary of the Treasury Glass on Monday, January 12, 1920, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Rowe announced at the pan-American commercial conference here. The first congress, called by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, was convened in May, 1915.

Charles M. Schwab, in addressing the conference, said that he would be "willing to risk his life and fortune in South America, so great was his faith in the honesty and integrity of the people."

COURT HOLDS TWO ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Charged with robbery, Joseph Rubin of Chestnut street, Chelsea, and William P. Treinische of Cross street, Malden, in the West Roxbury Court pleaded not guilty and their cases put over until June 12.

Courtland G. Morse of No. 10 Pomfret street, West Roxbury, the police say, was a passenger in a taxi driven by Treinische and in which Rubin was riding. When the auto got to Corey and Ruskin streets, West Roxbury, the police say, Morse was assaulted and a gold watch, knife and $10 stolen from him.

BOY SWIMMER DROWNS IN CHARLES

Two Others Rescued as They Were Near Death

James T. Lombardi, twelve years old, was drowned in the Charles River at [illegible], while swimming, and two other boys were rescued when near death.

Lombardi lived at No. 67 [illegible] street, Newton. While swimming with a crowd of boys he ventured beyond his depth and began to sink. A lad of his own age known simply as "Jerry" struck out to his rescue. Lombardi struggled hard and "Jerry" was in great danger of being drawn down with him when a man who was passing threw off his clothing and swam into the stream.

The stranger was successful in getting Jerry ashore, but before he could return to the spot where Lombardi had been the latter had gone down for the last time. The metropolitan police recovered the body.

Within an hour at the Galen street bridge, Watertown, Harry Forbes of No. 53 Fayette street, Watertown, while swimming, began to show symptoms of distress. He drifted down under the bridge and was rapidly losing strength when another boy, Joseph N. Maguire of Arsenal street, Watertown, swam to him and pulled him ashore.

Washington, June 6.—Alcohol is a necessity, representatives of the drug trade told the House Judiciary Committee at hearings on prohibition enforcement measures.

5,000 SCOUTS IN BIG RALLY SATURDAY

Will Provide Stunts to Rival Circus at Harvard Stadium Demonstration

Boy Scouts of Greater Boston will hold a great rally and demonstration at Harvard Stadium tomorrow afternoon to show what the Boy Scouts can do. It is the first event of its kind for two years as the war prevented it last year.

Some [illegible] boys will take part in the program and the events have been so [illegible] that something will be going on all the time in various parts of the field, a sort of a three-ring circus.

MORE THRILLS THAN CIRCUS.

The scouts can do stunts that give some of the thrills that accompany a real circus, too. They scale ten-foot walls with ease, build towers and bridges, light fires without matches as the early settlers in America could, and do many other feats which the small boy used to read about in stories of the West and envy.

Signaling by semaphore, international Morse code and heliograph is easy for these boys. They demonstrate how they can talk across space to each other when widely separated. Parents of Boy Scouts who want to know what the boys are being taught can learn by taking in the big field day. So can the public. Admission is free.

Scouts are taught to give first aid treatment to the injured to alleviate suffering and if possible to save human life. The exercises begin with a parade and review in which the marchers will be headed by the Scout drum and bugle corps.

MANY EVENTS ON PROGRAM.

Other interesting events on the program will be the antelope race, setting up drill, use of the trek cart, bugling contest, hammock making, the ceremony of colors, the last being one of the most beautiful features of the day.

An audience of 27,000 people witnessed the rally in 1917, but next Saturday's audience is expected to far eclipse that number. There is a large demand for tickets from the parents and friends of the scouts and scout officials. The public will be accommodated with tickets at the central office of the Greater Boston Federation, No. 4?3 Washington street.

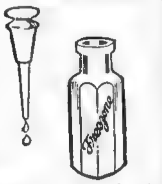
TO FORM LEGION IN SOUTH BOSTON

At the request of the veterans of the World War, Colonel Edward L. Logan has called a meeting of the soldiers, sailors and marines of South Boston, in the service, to meet at the Municipal Building June 9 at 8 o'clock, the object being to form a South Boston legion.

The meeting will be addressed by Colonel John Herbert and Sergeant Major George Kilbody of the 101st Infantry, both of whom were delegates to the St. Louis convention.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS OF TECHNOLOGY DINE

The annual banquet of the Mechanical Engineering Society of Technology will be held tonight at Walker Memorial. General T. C. Dickson, commander of the Watertown Arsenal, John A. Stevens, secretary of the New England section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and Professor Edward F. Miller, in charge of the department of mechanical engineering at the Institute, will address the students.



LIFT OFF CORNS WITH FINGERS

Doesn't hurt a bit and costs only few cents

Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

POLES TO HOLD PROTEST MEETING ON JEWS' CHARGE

The Poles of Greater Boston will hold a meeting in Faneuil Hall next Sunday afternoon, with an overflow meeting in Faneuil Hall square to protest against the recent charges of the Jews that a "pogrom" exists in Poland and to refute other charges made by speakers at the Jewish mass meeting in Mechanics Building May 28. No Other Store Offers ALL These Advantages

Every store offers the public some advantage, either real or imaginary, in order to gain patronage. But no store that we ever heard of offers the clothing buyer so many distinct and worth-while advantages, or has developed them to such a high degree, as this Live Store. "May we not" enumerate some of the more prominent of them?

Merchandise of known quality, ranging from the worthy medium grade to the very choicest the market affords, so that any man who wants dependable clothing can always find it here.

Style that's correct, whether for college men, business men, elderly men, or men of any description whatsoever.

Greater value-giving which results from our big purchases, low overhead expense, cash buying and cash selling.

Superior service, which includes a wider variety to choose from as well as the greatest care to see that you get just what you want just as you want it.

Kuppenheimer Clothes

May well be termed another of the prominent advantages we offer, for certainly it's to any man's advantage to wear these fine garments and a still further advantage to be able to buy them at the special Kennedy prices which range from $38 up. Their distribution is confined to us in this territory.

Other Makes

It was bitter cold as Jack Dempsey and "Liz" Fisher went whirling over the right of way of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, clinging to the "rods" beneath a fast passenger train, bound for Pueblo, Colo.

It was so cold that Jack's feet were frozen, and at a town which Jack thinks was Hoisington, Kans., although he isn't sure on that point, they had to "unload." The fighter hobo was in great misery, and "Liz" helped him to the roundhouse in the railroad yards.

They wanted to lie down and sleep there but the railroad folks chased them out and they limped down the tracks until they came to an old box [illegible]. They got in [illegible] box car and built a little fire on the floor out of [illegible]. The blaze thawed them out and under its warmth [illegible] fell asleep.

"I woke up after [illegible]," says Jack, "and I smelt something burning. The floor of the box car was on fire. Well, we got out of there pretty quick, you bet, and went up into the town. We were good and hungry, but Liz had no idea of how to mooch something to eat, so I had to hit a house myself.

"I knocked on the kitchen door of the first one we came to and out came the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life. She [illegible] big eyes and a grand [illegible] know [illegible] but I felt ashamed [illegible] of a [illegible] and I [illegible] down while I was asking her for some eats.

SANDWICHES AND FRUIT.

"She gave us a bundle of turkey sandwiches and some oranges, and I don't think I ever tasted anything so good in all my life. Say, she was a peach!

"They brought up in the railroad station and were sitting there getting warm when the door opened and a minion of the local law entered, casting an eagle orb about the place.

"He was looking for fellows to go to work," says Jack, "and he spotted Liz and me right away. He knew we were 'boes and he was hunting 'boes. That's the way they get the work done in Kansas City. 'Come on, you fellers,' he says to Liz and me, 'I've got a nice job for you.'

"Well, of course, we didn't want any jobs, but we had to go along with him or go to jail, and even work's better than a Kansas jail. He took us up to a bowling alley and set us to work sticking up the ten pins after the bowlers knocked 'em over.

"I had on a big sweater, and I sweated like a good fellow putting up pins for a while. They had some other 'boes in there doing the same thing, and one of them dropped a ball on my hand.

"I'd had some of my fingers mashed not long before that on the trip to Kansas City trying to get into a water tank, and the ball squashed the rest of [illegible] it hurt. I had to quit work, and the guy in charge of the alleys gave me a quarter."

Two days more of hard and very cold traveling got the wayfarers to Pueblo [illegible] and Fisher's home, which is a short distance out of town. There they got a warm [illegible] for Fisher's [illegible] was glad to see him again and [illegible] friend of her son's as a guest.

DOES SOME FARMING.

"[illegible]," says Dempsey. "She gave me $5, and I got a haircut and a few other things. Then I went to the express office to get the suitcase I had left with Morris in Kansas City, and I found that he'd sent it C. O. D. There was $2.60 due [illegible], so pretty soon I was broke again.

"I stayed around Fisher's for quite a while, and I made myself useful on the ranch, too. I [illegible] a couple of hogs [illegible] dressed the meat, and did a lot of other work because I know [illegible] farming, if I don't know [illegible] else.

"I wanted to get back home as soon as I could, so after resting up good I went into town one day and hailed a Rio Grande passenger train, west bound. I was a real good 'bo by this time, and don't you forget it. Liz Fisher staid home.

"The conductor saw me get on at Pueblo, but he let me ride to the town of Florence. I was riding the blind—the front of the baggage car, you know—and he made me unload. Then I swung in under on the rods and rode to Salida. I had to stay there all night but I kept hid out, because the last time I was in Salida I was pretty prosperous, and I didn't want to let the people I knew see me back there on the bummer.

"Then I caught a train and rode to Grand Junction near the Utah State line, staid there all day and grabbed another rattler on into Salt Lake. I was home once more, and glad of it. Yes, sir, I was glad!"

Dempsey and "Liz" Fisher arrived in Pueblo New Year's Day, 1917.

MATRIMONIAL TROUBLES.

Speaking of romance, reminds me that somewhere in among his jaunts eastward and westward Jack Dempsey managed to work some of that sort of thing into his life. He got himself married up—how, and where, deponeth sayeth not. As I gather, it was a matrimonial tie which did not "take," and which has since been dissolved.

It is not a matter on which I feel disposed to expatiate at length, for I know little or nothing concerning it. I mention it in passing, because assuredly those matters are part of a man's life. Sometimes all of it.

There now befel an incident which I am inclined to think Jack Dempsey has often regretted. It was a match with Jim Flynn, the old Pueblo Fireman, one of the greatest characters who ever poked a beezer between the ropes, and a hardy individual in the ring of his day.

That day was well past, and gone, when Flynn met Dempsey. Jim was then just an old toothless tiger, with the spirit of combat still strong within him, but without the means of execution.

ALWAYS GIVE A SHOW.

Had Jim's size been commensurate with his fighting heart he would have been a champion. Whenever he crawled through the ropes the fistic followers knew there was going to be a fight, and a good fight while it lasted.

They will always remember around New York how Jim took in Carl Morris, then touted as a championship possibility, and beat him to a geyser of gore in Madison Square Garden; how he later met Jim Coffey at Brighton Beach at a time when they thought they had the Irish giant prepped for a big match with Willard, and how Flynn pasted Coffey until it looked as if he would knock him out, only to have his own seconds toss in a towel on the ground that Flynn had broken his hands.

How to Play Baseball

THIS is the twelfth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton continues to tell how to play second base. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

The second base position assumes more importance when it is considered that more than three-fifths of the safe hits that go to the outfield are to the right of the line drawn straight to centre field and that the return throws excepting those to the plate, are almost all made to the second baseman.

He should be the strong relay man of the infield and should be able to move far out to meet the ball being thrown back by outfielders after long hits or even after long fly catches, to pivot quickly and throw with a fast snap motion is what makes him a second baseman, so that he should be the one to handle balls thrown back by the outfielders.

On return throws to the plate, of course, the second baseman should defer to the first baseman, who takes the centre of the diamond and decides. But on long hits the second baseman must get far out and hold with the relay, returning quickly to his base to receive a throw in case the ball is blocked down by the first baseman or pitcher or even the catcher and fired back to second.

No matter where the second baseman ranges it is his duty to be back on his base until the runner has passed his station and even then to cover. The second baseman, however, must regulate his moves by his own throwing power and that of the shortstop, but perfect understanding should exist between them as to which is to move outward and which is to move toward third to cover or back up a throw in that direction.

The waste of a second in deciding which player is to assume the responsibility of relaying a ball to the plate on long hits may mean the loss of a run and a

Stocks Open Higher in New York and Boston and Remain Strong All the Morning, With Trading Brisk

STEEL COMMON AT YEAR'S HIGHEST

Coppers Advance, Sugars and Leathers Strong and Rails Steady

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon after an active morning market in which leathers, alcohols, sugars and tobaccos developed strength. Coppers advanced and steels were higher. U. S. Steel sold at a new high for 1919. General Motors was a feature in its class showing a ten point gain at its highest. Marines were weak. Oils rallied during the forenoon, led by Mexican Petroleum. Transactions during the first hour exceeded 450,000 shares.

Among issues to show the largest gains were Atlantic Gulf, Central Leather, Hide and Leather common, Anaconda, Bethlehem, Crucible, Chandler, Maxwell, Mexican Petroleum, Pan America, United Cigar Stores, Industrial Alcohol and U. S. Food Products. They were up from one to nearly five points at their highest. At noon most issues were a little below their best prices.

Issues to sell at record highest levels included United Cigar Stores, General Motors and Hide and Leather common and preferred. Among those to sell at their year's highest were Central Leather, Beet Sugar, American Sugar, Bethlehem B, Reading, Chino, Kennecott, Utah Copper and Anaconda.

VIGOROUS ADVANCE AT OPENING.

Prices were not only higher at the opening, but there was vigor to the advance. Issues to start with substantial gains were numerous and included Central Leather, Studebaker, General Motors, Southern Pacific, Pan American and American Sugar. U. S. Steel sold at its highest price for the year on its initial transaction. This was true of several other stocks. Overnight orders came from all parts of the country, and when trading began demand was far in excess of offerings. There were very few issues to recede at all, although several oils shows small losses and Marine preferred had a weak opening. Profit taking immediately followed the advance, but its effect was brief. After a momentary halt the upward movement was resumed. American Ice was among stocks to advance several points on a few transactions. Coppers were strong and there was good demand for a number of low-priced rails, as well as standard carriers. The strength of U. S. Steel gave tone to the whole list. The market was strong and active at the end of the first hour.

TRADE NEWS ENCOURAGING.

Security valuations were enhanced by trade reports, the latter being distinctly encouraging. From copper-selling circles came word that there was more demand for metal, and it looked as if consumption would soon be nearer normal than it has been for months. Increased activity at steel mills is reported, and there are other developments in this industry which appear to verify predictions of good business later in the year made by Judge Gary and others. One of the most satisfactory phases of the present situation is increased confidence in a readjustment of railway control that will help business everywhere and in every way.

NO INCREASE IN BROKERS' LOANS

An interesting statement which came from New York this morning and was first printed in a financial news bulletin reads: "Canvass of the leading commission [illegible] fails to reveal the expected increase in Wall Street brokers' [illegible] of the largest houses re[illegible] week's activities have added [illegible] to their liabilities. Only [illegible] reported any [illegible] increase in loans. This house [illegible] loans increased over 10 per cent [illegible] the past ten days. The break that occurred one day this week did not reduce the volume of loans, but it did shift them somewhat."

Per Capita Circulation

Domestic Sales Break Records

It is reported by Montgomery Ward & Co. that their domestic sales have been breaking records, increasing 46½ per cent in May this year as compared with the corresponding 1918 month. For the first five 1919 months the increase exceeded 21 per cent.

Pig Iron Output Small

May production of pig iron totaled but 2,104,382 tons, compared with 2,474,874 tons in April. The loss in active stocks at the end of the month was 16, the total being 216 against 199 on April 3[illegible].

Deposit Your Money in Your Home Town Bank

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Community spirit promotes the growth of towns and cities and helps individual citizens by united action on the part of the many [illegible]. It makes the most of natural advantages, and has made great cities out of places which had none. But to make community spirit wholly effective, it must go beyond interest in maintaining local government of a high standard, beyond desire for good schools and the efficiency of law and order, fire and other public service departments.

[illegible] from a population, and the more local trade and industrial production can be fostered, the more people will congregate to live and work in a particular township or municipality. There is as much reason for keeping business at home as practicing charity there.

To do business there must be banks. Such institutions are concrete evidence of the prosperity of any place. They are the monuments of industry and [illegible] and enterprise. A town without a good bank merits a the poorhouse. No community can either expand or hold its own without capital, and Home Financing is as important as Home Rule. Local banking tells whether a town [illegible] at a standstill or lagging in the [illegible] that exists between chartered populations as well as between [illegible].

If a person has public spirit he or she will be a [illegible] in preference to one in another community. It means more capital available for building construction, trade extension and industrial development where the depositor makes his residence. It means more and better stores, more and larger factories, and more churches and dwelling houses where he lives.

A cheap vault
is never a SAFE deposit vault

Question. What do you keep your securities and valuables in a Safe Deposit Vault?

ANSWER. In order to be secure from Theft, Fire and Water.

Question. What is the use in doing this unless they are safer than they would be at home?

ANSWER. There is no use.

Question. What makes you think they are safer?

ANSWER. Because you assume that you have placed them in a Safe Deposit Vault that is of the FIRST CLASS in all details of construction and maintenance.

Question. When may you just as well keep them at home?

ANSWER. Whenever your valuables are in a Safe Deposit Vault NOT of the FIRST CLASS.

An advertisement reading "Modern Fire and Burglar Proof Safe Deposit Vault" does not necessarily make it a vault of the FIRST CLASS. Any safe manufacturer will tell you that even a small vault cannot be built and equipped for less than $50,000 and a large vault in a Metropolitan District would cost at least twice that sum.

Question. What is a FIRST CLASS Safe Deposit Vault?

ANSWER. A Safe Deposit Vault of proper construction—located in the heart of a large city where the fire and police forces are at the highest state of efficiency—where enough money has been spent in building it and where enough money is being spent on experienced attendants and watchmen to bring it up to a certain standard for a FIRST CLASS vault which is generally agreed upon by experts as giving proper security.

Question. What is the Standard of Construction and Maintenance?

ANSWER. DOORS at least 10 inches thick; walls at least a foot thick and of suitable material with hardened steel lining; FLOORS properly protected against tunneling; roof strong enough to sustain the fall of the entire building without being crushed in. A SUFFICIENT NUMBER OF ATTENDANTS and officials constantly on duty both day and night. There is really more need of having a suitable force of men constantly on duty in the vaults, while they are open DURING THE DAY than at any other time. This is an EXPENSE that many Safe Deposit Companies SEEK TO AVOID. Proper SUPERVISION OF ALL KEYS and locks. Modern ELECTRIC DEVICES for giving the alarm in case any attempt is made to tamper with the vault during the night.

You do not have to take any man's word as to whether you are in a FIRST CLASS safe deposit vault or not. Look it over yourself and apply the tests given here. There are many Safe Deposit Vaults that are not FIRST CLASS.

The Commonwealth Trust Company vaults, in all respects, comply with the standard set by experts—and box renters in them have the comfort of knowing that they are as safe from loss as human ingenuity and experience can make them.

Long ago people decided that the primary purpose of the home was for the care of the young. And the housewife of today who is having her financial struggle during reconstruction would do well to recall to her mind why her home exists. And if it is for the care of the young and incidentally so that the children of that home may live to make the world a bit better for their coming [illegible] crush their spirits by [illegible] upon all their wages.

Prices are high and every housewife feels the pressing need for money perhaps as never before. One housewife whom I know has handled this situation well. Instead of taking the wages of her two working daughters she hit a better plan. The girls although working some time were not earning much [illegible] the mother began serving less expensive plainer foods. After two weeks of this the girls were growing dissatisfied.

FIND THEIR HERO HUSBANDS CHANGED

The Men Who Fought Do Not Take the Same Pleasure in Frivolous Things They Once Did

By Beatrice Fairfax.

SEVERAL letters have come to me from women who have their soldier sweethearts and husbands safely back from "Over There," but who are sorely puzzled by the change that has come over them.

In every case the men in question have been in the front line trenches and have gone through the shot and shell of those last terrible fighting days. They felt, rather than heard, the numbing silence—more awful than the din—that began at 11 o'clock, that fateful November morning when the order to "cease firing" was given.

"It was the silence that got me—I could stand everything but that," one woman quoted her husband as saying, and she goes on to say that after the first enthusiasm of homecoming was over, he seemed to care for nothing but to sit quietly and think. The old amusements about which he had been so keen before he went to France, now fell flat and even the especial interest of a garden, that formerly occupied every spare moment, fails to exercise any charm.

There seems to be nothing else to suggest to these women but to wait and let time, the all-healing unguent, work its habitual miracle. Some men are pre-eminently fitted to be soldiers, men of rugged fibre, iron nerve, slow sensibilities, such are capable of shedding the harrowing spectre of war by reason of their temperament.

Others, more sensative, are obsessed by their experiences, and find it impossible to eradicate war impressions immediately. They live over and over these scenes, until something more compelling comes along to replace them, or until time gets in its handiwork.

Quiet the Best Restorer

This period of adjustment is the time for a conscientious wife to be what Sir Walter Scott calls "a ministering angel." Produce pipe, slippers and house coat, and be prepared to cultivate a sympathetic silence, if that is what is demanded by the lacerated nerves of your man. Don't expect one who has just escaped death—and has seen his friends drop around him by the score—to call for his dancing pumps and betake himself to the nearest cabaret as soon as he has hung up his trench helmet.

However, it is all a question of nerves and their sensitiveness to receiving and retaining impressions. The cabaret may be exactly the medicine that will work wonders in restoring a certain type. It may give the necessary stimulus craved, or, again, it may be an added horror.

So if you are a wife or a sweetheart, and are puzzled by having a soldier man given to long deep reflection, don't despair. It may be only nature's way of restoring the balance. It is hardly fair to expect a sensitive man who has been through the hell of the trenches to come back to you as if he had returned from a jolly weekend and is feeling particularly fit after the experience.

In the first enthusiasm of getting back it may even seem that way, but the energy for frivolity is more than apt to flag and a pipe and slippers to win the day.

A correspondent who signs herself "Louise" is feeling particularly discouraged at this state of affairs. She was married just before her husband sailed for France, and she has taken great pride in her loyalty, sternly declining to attend any of the meetings of the dancing club, of which they were both enthusiastic members before the war began.

She had fully expected [illegible] her young husband [illegible] on dancing after he [illegible] was before he sailed. And [illegible] in spite of all her [illegible] be a model wife she is [illegible] to feel just a little sorry for herself.

Louise tells me that she is just eighteen, so it is not difficult to understand why she expects her man to display the customary ardor for dancing and musical comedy that he had before he went marching off. He has been through an experience that is likely to exercise a sobering influence for years, if not for life.

No man can have been through the hell and glory of Chateau-Thierry and not have reached the climax of human emotion. He has taken part in the greatest conflict the world has ever known. He has drunk his coffee in the gray of early morning with his comrades, and at night he has come back without them. He has made a crony of death, week in and week out in the trenches, and there have been times when death would have been easier than living.

Whatever life has to offer in the way of emotion, keyed to the utmost limit, the men who fought during those last days experienced to the full. And a man cannot drain the cup to the dregs and in a few weeks accommodate himself to the pace of a suburban husband, interested in his former dancing club and the lawn mower.

He can easily manage to drop back into his old place if he went over there and got no further than one of the big training camps, but it is not quite reasonable to expect it if he went "over the top" and has come back to you either gassed or wounded.

Dropping the Heroic Attitude

All along the line there is beginning to be a general let down of the heroic attitude taken by the men during the war. The "Near East" may demand their charity and sacrifice as much as Belgium, but it is difficult to get them keyed to the necessary pitch of enthusiasm over further horrors; they have been "fed up" on atrocities and the pendulum is beginning to swing back again.

They saved, rationed their families, sewed for the Red Cross and practiced amazing [illegible]. Now they want to eat, dress and be merry and realize that [illegible] is not waiting [illegible].

But it would take [illegible] pessimist to believe that they will ever go back to the utter [illegible] of their pre-war existence. Shopping for amusement, shopping when they never intended to buy, matching scraps of bright colored ribbons to while away a morning, telling their friends by the hour of their dollies and the size of their motors, and the names that always rose like cream to the tops of their card baskets—no, I don't believe they will go back to these things; a little abiding light must have come to them while they rolled bandages for their men over there.

We've All Done It

Not so very long ago a chauffeur was brought up after having run down a man.

"You struck this pedestrian, and he was seriously injured?" the judge asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the chauffeur.

"Why didn't you zigzag your car and miss him?"

"He was zigzagging himself," said the chauffeur, "and he happened to zag at the time I zigged."

What Has Happened So Far in the Story

Francis Morgan, a young New York millionaire, heavily interested in oil, meets Alvarez Torres, an adventurer, in the Wall street office of Thomas Regan, who has an old score to pay off against Francis' father. Torres tells Francis he has the key to the hidden treasure of Sir Henry Morgan, the buccaneer. Francis goes to Central America in quest of the cache, Torres agreeing to follow. The young man hires a schooner, rows ashore and meets a beautiful girl, who pulls him toward the jungle. He is mystified, but she asks for a kiss, bursts into tears and sends him away just in time to escape being shot by advancing Spaniards. Francis sails to an island held by Henry Morgan, also a descendant of the pirate. The girl who kissed Francis proves to be Leoncia Solano, engaged to Henry. The men come to blows, but afterward make up, and Francis, learning that Henry is believed to have killed Leoncia's uncle, goes back with the engagement ring, denies the rumor and puts the ring on the girl's finger, explaining that she mistook him for Henry. Torres, who is at the Solano hacienda, sees Francis give Leoncia the ring, and is infuriated. He contrives to have Francis arrested, and when he is freed, through the arrival of Henry, the latter is put in jail and Leoncia begs her family to help save them. Torres declares his love for Leoncia, but plots to have Henry hanged and Francis killed on the sly. Leoncia and the Solanos scheme to save Henry.

The theme of this story was suggested to the author by Charles W. Goddard.

HE rode away at a careful walk, timid of the animal he bestrod, which has cused his catastrophe. He halted and turned his head at a call from Pedro Zurita.

"Search the graveyard, Senor Narvaez," the jailer advised. "Full a hundred Tomas Romeros lit there."

"And be vigilant, I beg of you, senor, of the heavy box," the peddler called back.

Henry watched the street grow deserted as the gendarmes and the populace fled from the scorch of the sun. Small wonder, he thought to himself, that the old peddler's voice had sounded vaguely familiar. It has been because he had possessed only half a Spanish tongue, to twist around the language—the other half being the German tongue of the mother. Even so, he talked like a native, and he would be robbed like a native if there were anything of value in the heavy box deposited with the jailers, Henry concluded, ere dismissing the incident from his mind.

In the guardoom a scanty fifty feet away from Henry's cell, Leopoldo Navaez was being robbed. It had begun by Pedro Zurita making a profound and wistful survey of the large box. He lifted one end of it to sample its weight, and sniffed like a hound at the crack of it as if his nose might give him some message of its contents.

"I smell nothing," he announced. "Absolutely in the box there is nothing to smell. Now what can it be? The Caballero said that it was of value!"

"We will look—we will only look," Pedro muttered nervously, as the turnkey pried off a board with the blade of the hatchet. "Then we will close the box again—Put your hand in, Ignacio. What is it you find? . . . Eh? What does it feel like? Ah!"

After pulling and tugging Ignacio's hand had reappeared clutching a cardboard carton.

"Remove it carefully, for it must be replaced," the jailer cautioned.

And when the wrapping of paper and tissue were removed all eyes were focused on a quart bottle of rye whiskey.

A Good Excuse

"It is Americano whiskey," sighed a gendarme. "Once, only, have I drunk Americano whiskey. It was wonderful. Such was the courage of it, that I leaped into the bull-ring at Santos and faced a wild bull with my hands. It is true the bull rolled me, but did I not leap into the ring?"

Pedro took the bottle and prepared to knock its neck off.

"Hold!" cried Rafael. "You were paid to be honest!"

"By a man who was not himself honest," came the retort. "The stuff is contraband. It has never paid duty. The old man in possession of smuggled goods! Let us now gratefully and with clear conscience invest ourselves in its possession. We will confiscate it. We will destroy it."

Not waiting for the bottle to pass, Ignacio and Rafael unwrapped fresh ones and broke off the necks.

"And four stars!" queried Ignacio, his voice husky from the liquor, the moisture glistening in his eyes. "Four stars? Friend Ignacio, four stars would be either sudden death or translation into Paradise."

In not many minutes Rafael, his arm around another gendarme, was calling him brother and proclaiming that it took little to make men happy here below.

"The old man was a fool, three times a fool, and thrice that," volunteered Augustino, a sullen gendarme, who for the first time gave tongue to speech.

"Viva Augustino!" cheered Rafael. "The three stars have worked a miracle! Behold—have they not unlocked Augustino's mouth?"

"And thrice times thrice again was the old man a fool!" Augustino bellowed fiercely. "The very drink of the gods was his, all his, and he has been five days alone with it on the road from Bocas del Toro and never taken one little sip. Such fools as he should be stretched out naked on an ant heap, say I."

"The old man was a rogue," quoth Pedro. "And when he comes back tomorrow for his three stars I shall arrest him for a smuggler. It will be a feather in all our caps."

The Effect of Liquor

"We will save the evidence—thus," Pedro replied, smashing an empty bottle on the stone flags. "Listen, comrades. The box was very heavy—we are all agreed. It fell. The bottles broke. The liquor ran out, and so we were made aware of the contraband. The box and the broken bottles will be evidence sufficient."

The uproar grew as the liquor diminished. One gendarme quarreled with Ignacio over a forgotten debt of ten centavos. Two others sat upon the floor, arms around each other's necks, and wept over the miseries of their married lot. Augustino, like a very spendthrift of speech, explained his philosophy that silence was golden, and Pedro Zurita became sentimental on brotherhood.

"Even my prisoners," he maundered. "I love them as brothers. Life is sad." A gush of tears in his eyes made him desist while he took another drink. "My prisoners are my very children. My heart bleeds for them. Behold! I weep. Let us share with them. Let them have a moment's happiness—Ignacio, dearest brother of my heart. Do me a favor. See, I weep on your hand. Carry a bottle of this elixir to the Gringo Morgan. Tell him my sorrow that he must hang tomorrow. Give him my love and bid him drink and be happy today."

And as Ignacio passed out on the errand the gendarme who had once leaped into the bull ring at Santos began roaring:

"I want a bull! I want a bull!"

"He wants it, dear soul, that he may put his arms around it and love it," Pedro Zurita explained, with a fresh access of weeping. "I too, love bulls. I love all things. I love even mosquitos. All the world is love. That is the secret of the world. I should like to have a lion to play with——"

The unmistakable air of "Back to Back Against the Mainmast," being whistled openly in the street, caught Henry's attention, and he was crossing his big cell to the window when the grating of a key in the door made him lie down quickly on the floor and feign sleep. Ignacio staggered drunkenly in, bottle in hand, which he gravely presented to Henry.

Leoncia, with Francis as assistant, steers the Angelique through the Waters of Chiriqui Lagoon

"With the high compliments of our good jailer, Pedro Zurita," he mumbled. "He says to drink and forget that he must stretch your neck tomorrow."

"My high compliments to Senor Pedro Zurita, and tell him from me to go to —— along with his whiskey," Henry replied.

The turnkey straightened up and ceased swaying, as if suddenly become sober.

"Very well, senor," he said, then passed out and locked the door.

In a rush Henry was at the window, just in time to encounter Francis, face to face and thrusting a revolver to him through the bars.

"Greetings, camarada," Francis said. "We'll have you out of here in a jiffy." He held up two sticks of dynamite, with fuse and caps complete. "I have brought this pretty crowbar to pry you out. Stand well back in your cell, because real pronto there's going to be a hole in this wall that we could sail the Angelique through. And the Angelique is right off the beach waiting for you. Now, stand back. I'm going to touch her off. It's a short fuse."

Hardly had Henry backed into a rear corner of his cell when the door was clumsily unlocked and opened to a babel of cries and imprecations, chiefest among which he could hear the ancient and invariable war cry of Latin-America, "Kill the Gringo!"

Also, he could hear Rafael and Pedro as they entered babbling—the one, "He is the enemy of brotherly love," and the other, "He said I was going to ——. Is not that what he said, Ignacio?"

In their hands they carried rifles, and behind them surged the drunken rabble, variously armed from cutlasses and horsepistols to hatchets and bottles. At sight of Henry's revolver they halted, and Pedro, fingering his rifle unsteadily, maundered solemnly:

"Senor Morgan, you are about to take up your rightful abode in the nether world."

A Short Fuse

But Ignacio did not wait. He fired wildly and widely from his hip, missing Henry by half the width of the cell and going down the next moment under the impact of Henry's bullet. The rest retreated precipitately into the jail corridor, where, themselves unseen, they began discharging their weapons into the room.

Thanking his fortunate stars for the thickness of the walls, and hoping no ricochet would get him, Henry sheltered in a protecting angle and waited for the explosion.

It came. The window and the walls beneath it became all one aperture. Struck on the head by a flying fragment, Henry sank down dizzily, and, as the dust of the mortar and the powder cleared, with wavering eyes he saw Francis apparently swim through the hole. By the time he had been dragged out through the hole Henry was himself again. He could see Enrico Solano and Ricardo, his youngest born, rifles in hand, holding back the crowd forming up the street, while the twins, Alvarado and Martinez, similarly held back the crowd forming down the street.

"The horses are waiting up the next alley," Francis told Henry, as they gripped hands. "And Leoncia is waiting with them. Fifteen minutes' gallop will take us to the beach, where the boat is waiting."

"Say, that was some song I taught you," Henry grinned. "It sounded like the very best little bit of all right when I heard you whistling it. The dogs were so previous they couldn't wait till tomorrow to hang me. They got full of whiskey and decided to finish me off right away. Funny thing, that whiskey. An old caballero turned peddler wrecked a wagon load of it right in front of the jail"——

"For even a noble Narvaez, son of Baltazar de Jesus y Cervallos e Narvaez, son of General Narvaez of martial memory, may be a peddler, and even a peddler must live—eh, senors, is it not so?" Francis mimicked.

CHAPTER VI.

MARIANO VERCARA E HIJOS, Jefe Politico of San Antonio, leaned back in his chair in the courtroom with a quiet smile of satisfaction and proceeded to roll a cigarette. The case had gone through as prearranged. He had kept the little old judge away from his mescal all day, and had been rewarded by having the judge try the case and give judgment according to program. He had not made a slip. The six peons, fined heavily, were ordered back to the plantation at Santos.

The working out of the fines was added to the time of their contract slavery. And the Jefe was two hundred dollars good American gold richer for the transaction.

His smile was even broader as he greeted Alvarez Torres.

"Listen," said the latter whispering low in his ear. "We can get both these devils of Morgans. The Henry pig hangs out tomorrow. There is no reason that the Francis pig should not go out today."

The Jefe remained silent, questioning with a lift of his eyebrows.

"I have advised him to storm the jail. The Solanos have listened to his lies and are with him. They will surely attempt to do it this evening. They could not do it this evening. They could not do it sooner. It is for you to be ready for the event, and see to it that Francis Morgan is shot and killed in the fight."

Some Cogent Reasons.

"For what and for why?" the Jefe temporized. "It is Henry I want to see out of the way. Let the Francis one go back to his beloved New York."

"He must go out today, and for reasons you will appreciate. As you know from reading my telegrams through the government wireless"—

The Jefe nodded acquiescence, then said:

"Will it be as much as a thousand gold you will get?"

"I think so. Surely the pig of an Irish stock-gambler could pay me no less a sum, and five hundred is yours if Francis leaves his bones in San Antonio."

A Spanish Trust.

"I shall go from here immediately to the jail," the Jefe announced. "You may trust me, Senor Torres, as I trust you. Come. We will go at once, now, eh? Come. We will depart at once."

He stood up, tossing his cigarette away with a show of determined energy. But, half-way across the room, a ragged boy, panting and sweating, plucked his sleeve and whined:

"I have information. You will pay me for it, most high Senor? I have run all the way."

"The jail," the boy quavered. "The strange Gringo, the one who was to be hanged yesterday, has blown down the side of the jail. Merciful saints! The hole is as big as the steeples of the cathedral! And the other Gringo, the one who looks like him, the one who was to hang tomorrow, has escaped with him out of the hole. He dragged him out of the hole himself. This I saw myself, with my two eyes, and then I ran here to you all the way, and you will remember. . . ."

Rafael, the gendarme, rifle in hand, the blood still oozing down his face from a scalp wound, came through the courtroom door and shouldered aside the curious ones who had begun to cluster around Torres and the Jefe.

"We are devastated!" were Rafael's first words. "The jail is most destroyed! Dynamite! A hundred pounds of it! A thousand! We came bravely to save the jail. But it exploded—the thousand pounds of dynamite. I fell unconscious, rifle in hand. When sense came back to me I looked around. All others, the brave Pedro, the brave Ignacio, the brave Augustino—all, all lay around me, dead!"

Almost could he have added, "drunk," but, his Latin-American nature so compounded, he sincerely stated and tragically presented itself to his imagination. "They lay dead. They may not be dead, but merely stunned. I crawled. The cell of the Gringo Morgan was empty.

"There was a huge and monstrous hole in the wall. I crawled through the hole into the street. There was a great crowd. But the Gringo Morgan was gone. I talked with a mose who had seen and who knew. They had horses waiting. They rode toward the beach. There is a schooner that is not anchored. It sails back and forth waiting for them. The Francis Morgan rides with a sack of gold on his saddle. The mose saw it. It is a large sack."

"And the hole?" the Jefe demanded. "The hole in the wall?"

"Is larger than the sack, much larger," was Rafael's reply. "But the sack is large. So the mose said. And he rides with it on his saddle."

Swears Vengeance

"My jail!" the Jefe cried. He slipped a dagger from inside his coat under the left arm-pit and held it aloft by the blade so that the hilt showed as a true cross on which a finely modeled Christ hung crucified. "I swear by all the saints the vengeance I shall have. My jail! Our justice! our law!—Horses! Horses! Gendarme, horses! He whirled about upon Torres as if the latter had spoken, shouting: "To hell with Senor Regan!" I am after my own! I have been defied! My jail is desolated! My law—our law, good friends—has been mocked. Horses! Horses! Commandeer them on the streets. Haste! Haste!

* * * * *

Captain Trefethen, owner of the Angelique, son of a Maya Indian mother and a Jamaica negro father, paced the narrow after-deck of his schooner, stared shoreward toward San Antonio, where he could make out his crowded long-boat returning and meditated flight from his mad American character.

At the same time he meditated remaining in order to break his charter and give a new one at three times the price; for he was strangely torn by his conflicting bloods. The negro portion counseled prudence and observance of Panamanian law. The Indian portion was urgent to unlawfulness and the promise of conflict.

It was the Indian mother who decided the issue and made him draw his jib, ease his mainsheet and begin to reach inshore, the quicker to pick up the oncoming boat. When he made out the rifles carried by the Solanos and the Morgans almost he put up his helm to run it and leave them.

When he made out a woman in the boat's stern sheets romance and thrift whispered in him to hang on and take the boat on board. For he knew that wherever woman entered into the transaction of men that peril and pelf as well entered hand in hand.

And aboard came the woman, the peril and the pelf—Leoncia, the rifles and a sack of money—all in a scramble; for the wind being light, the captain had not bothered to stop way on the schooner.

Leoncia Comes Aboard

"Glad to welcome you on board, sir," Captain Trefethen greeted Francis with a white slash of teeth between his smiling lips. "But who is this man?" He nodded his head to indicate Henry.

"A friend, captain, a guest of mine, in fact, a kinsman."

"And who, sir, may I make bold to ask, are these gentlemen riding along the beach in fashion so lively?"

Henry looked quickly at the group of horsemen galloping along the sand, unceremoniously took the binoculars from the skipper's hand, and gazed through them.

"It's the Jefe himself in the lead," he reported to Leoncia and her men folk, "with a bunch of gendarmes." He uttered a sharp exclamation, stared through the glasses intently, then shook his head. "Almost I thought I made out our friend Torres."

"With our enemies!" Leoncia cried incredulously, remembering Torres' proposal of marriage and proffer of service and honor that very day on the hacienda plazza.

"I must have been mistaken," Francis acknowledged, "they are riding so bunched together. But it's the Jefe all right, two jumps ahead of the outfit."

"Who is this Torres duck?" Henry asked harshly. "I've never liked his looks from the first, yet he seems always welcome under your roof, Leoncia."

"I beg your pardon, sir, most gratifiedly, and with my humilious respects," Captain Trefethen interrupted suavely. "But I must call your attention to the previous question, sir, which is: who and what is that cavalcade disporting itself with such earnestness along the sand?"

"They tried to hang me yesterday," Francis laughed. "And tomorrow they were going to hang my kinsman there. Only we beat them to it. And here we are. Now, Mr. Skipper, I call your attention to your headsheets flapping in the wind. You are standing still. How much longer do you expect to stick around here?"

British Subject.

"Mr. Morgan, sir," came the answer, "it is with dumfounded respect that I serve you as the charterer of my vessel. Nevertheless, I must inform you that I am a British subject. King George is my king, sir, and I owe obedience first of all to him and to his laws of maritime between all nations, sir. It is lucid to my comprehension that you have broken laws ashore, or else the officers would not be so assiduously in quest of you, sir.

"And it is also lucid to clarification that it is now your wish to have me break the laws of maritime by enabling you to escape. So in honor bound, I must stick around here until this little difficulty that you may have appertained ashore is adjusted to the satisfaction of all parties concerned, sir, and to the satisfaction of all my lawful sovereign."

"Fill away and get out of this skipper!" Henry broke in angrily.

"Sir, assuring you of your gratification of pardon, it is my unpleasant task to inform you of two things. Neither are you my charterer, nor are you the noble King George to whom I give ambitious allegiance."

"Well, I'm your charterer, skipper," Francis said pleasantly, for he had learned to humor the man of mixed words and parentage. "So just kindly put up your helm and sail as fast as God and this wind will let you."

The Almighty Dollar

"It is not in the charter, sir, that my Angelique shall break the laws of Panama and King George."

"I'll pay you well!" Francis retorted, beginning to lose his temper. "Get busy."

"You will then recharter, sir, at three times the present charter?"

Francis nodded shortly.

"Then wait, sir, I entreat. I must procure pen and paper from the cabin and make out the document."

"Oh, Lord," Francis groaned, "square away and get a move on first. We can make out the paper just as easily while we are running as standing still. Look! They are beginning to fire."

The half-breed captain heard the report, and, searching his spread canvas, discovered the hole of the bullet high up near the peak of the mainsail.

"Very well, sir," he conceded. "You are a gentleman and an honorable man. I trust you to affix your signature to the document at your early convenience—Hey, you nigger! Put up your wheel! Hard up! Jump, you black rascals, and slack away mainsheet! Take a hand there, you, Percival, on the boom-tackle."

All obeyed, as did Percival, a grinning, shambling Kingston negro who was as black as his name was white, and as did another, addressed more respectfully as Juan, who was more Spanish and Indian than negro, as his light yellow skin attested, and whose fingers, slacking the foresheet, were as slim and delicate as a girl's.

"Knock the nigger on the head if he keeps up his freshness," Henry growled in an undertone to Francis. "For two cents I'll do it right now."

Shook His Head

But Francis shook his head.

"He's all right, but he's a Jamaica nigger, and you know what they are. And he's Indian as well. We might as well humor him, since it's the nature of the beast. He means all right, but he wants the money, he's risking his schooner against confiscation, and he's afflicted with vocabularitis. He just must get these long words out of his system or bust."

Here Enrico Solano, with quivering nostrils and fingers restless on his rifle as with half an eye he kept track of the wild shots being fired from the beach, approached Henry and held out his hand.

"I have been guilty of a grave mistake, Senor Morgan," he said. "In the first burst of afflictions at the death of my beloved brother, Alfaro, I was guilty of thinking you guilty of his murder." Here old Enrico's eyes flashed with anger, consuming but unconsumable. "For murder it was dastardly and cowardly, a thrust in the dark in the back. I should have known better. But I was overwhelmed, and the evidence was all against you. I did not take pause or thought to consider that my dearly beloved and only daughter was betrothed to you, to remember that all I had of you was straightness and manlikeness and courage such as never stabs from behind the shield of the dark. I regret. I am sorry. And I am proud once again to welcome you into my family as the husband-to-be of my Leoncia."

Back in Favor

And while this whole-hearted restoration of Harry Morgan into the Solano family went on, Leoncia was irritated because her father, in Latin-American fashion, must use so many fine words and phrases, when a single phrase, a hand-grip and a square look in the eyes were all that was called for and was certainly all that either Henry or Francis would have vouchsafed and the situation been reversed. Why, why, she asked of herself, must her Spanish stock, in such extravagance of diction, seem to emulate the similar extravagance of the Jamaica negro?

While this reiteration of the betrothal of Henry and Leoncia was taking place, Francis, striving to appear uninterested, could not help taking note of the pale-yellow sailor called Juan, conferring forward with others of the crew, shrugging his shoulders significantly, gesticulating passionately with his hands.

Keep Your Mind Cool

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Every time there is a heated spell thousands of people suffer unnecessarily.

There are two reasons why this happens.

Some people, whose minds have that peculiar bent, multiply to the point of agony any change from normal conditions.

They cannot walk in a crowded street.

They cannot sleep after daybreak.

They cannot eat other than specially cooked foods.

And if there is a rise in temperature they suffer in both mind and body.

There is another class of people who attain the same discomfort by totally ignoring all conditions. They eat and drink in hot weather just as they do in cold. Some of them, from pride, wear stiff, high collars or tight, uncomfortable clothing.

What both these classes need is a change in mental attitude.

You may not be able to make the mercury sink in the thermometer, but you can to a great degree ignore the temperature.

You can THINK yourself comfortable as well as MAKE yourself comfortable, and if you do both you will lose sight of at least part of your troubles.

Dress loosely; you should do that always.

Eat sparingly; most of us eat too much all the time.

Drink plenty of water, cooled but not iced, and leave other beverages alone.

And think comfort, not discomfort. KEEP YOUR MIND COOL.

Don't Be Swindled by the Oil Stock Gang

That These Bandits Are Not Locked Up Is a Disgrace to the Public's Common Sense

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Wholesale thievery is progressing publicly in the United States, well advertised in newspapers willing to sell their columns to those that want to cheat their readers.

There arrived in New York the other day a well-known exploiter of the public, adept in swindling games of various kinds. He greeted his friends with a cheerful, "WELL, BOYS, I'M ALL IN!"

He had just come back from Texas, whither he went to acquire a few worthless acres of land, or imaginary oil rights under some acres. That gave him the right to advertise "oil land" in Texas and hope of "striking oil."

He might as well have bought the rights to any piece of farm land near New York and advertised that as "oil land."

With that stock in trade, and no more, this gentleman will begin selling oil stock to gambling victims. He will say that his stock is going to be put on sale at a dollar a share and that the price will go up without warning.

He will talk about the wonderful "gushers" nearby. He won't say HOW near, whether one mile or a thousand miles away.

He will tell you how quickly John D. Rockefeller got rich, but he won't tell you that John D. Rockefeller got rich because he was too wise to be taken in by swindlers.

It ought to be the business of prosecuting attorneys and of the police force to investigate these swindling oil well announcements, convict the thieves and publish the facts.

And it ought to be the business of prosecuting attorneys or of somebody else to regulate the publishing in newspapers of these lying, stock-jobbing advertisements in which the rascal is allowed by the owner of the newspaper to rob the readers of the newspaper in return for a cash consideration.

The owner of a newspaper would not allow a public swindler to walk into his house, cheat his family and his friends. He should not allow that swindler to walk into his advertising columns and cheat his readers.

This is written to warn the public that if they buy stocks in so-called "oil wells" of which they know nothing, the chances are at least one hundred to one that they will be swindled and never get back a dollar of their money.

This is written also to ask the prosecuting attorneys and the police and the Federal authorities why they do not investigate some of these so-called "oil wells" and the swindlers back of them and take appropriate action.

If the prosecuting authorities will not act, then the STOCK EXCHANGE AUTHORITIES SHOULD ACT.

They should investigate, if only for their own protection, because they want the public's money themselves, every one of these announcements of wells without oil, securities without real property back of them, and take steps to prosecute the advertisers obtaining money under false pretences.

An ordinary band of card sharks, openly playing their game in every city, would do less harm and steal infinitely less money than is stolen by these promoters of fake oil schemes and similar schemes.

To the readers of this newspaper we say: NEVER INVEST A DOLLAR IN ANY STOCK UNLESS IT HAS BEEN ON RECORD IN THE STOCK EXCHANGE AND PAID DIVIDENDS WITHOUT INTERRUPTION FOR YEARS.

Never believe that anybody is going, knowingly, to sell you for one dollar something worth ten dollars or even a dollar and a half.

Remember that the man who says he has an oil well knows more about that well than you could possibly know. If it IS an oil well HE will keep it. If it is a hole in the ground, without any oil under it, he will sell it TO YOU, if he can.

Don't let him make a fool of you, don't be swindled out of money that has cost you hard work.

Keep away from the oil stock swindlers.

* * *
AND AS soon as he saw.
* * *
THAT HIS master smiled.
* * *
AND SHOOK my hand.
* * *
AND ASKED me in.
* * *
WHY THEN Mutt smiled.
* * *
AND CAME along.
* * *
AND APOLOGIZED.
* * *
BY LICKING my hand.
* * *
AND I answered him.
* * *
BY SCRATCHING his back.
* * *
AND WE both of us knew.
* * *
THAT FROM that time on.
* * *
NO MATTER what came.
* * *
BE IT calm or storm.
* * *
WE WERE to be friends.
* * *
AND WE visited.
* * *
THE THREE of us.
* * *
FOR A little while.
* * *
IN THE master's house.
* * *
AND THEN came out.
* * *
ON THE new-cut lawn.
* * *
AND MUTT disappeared.
* * *
AND CAME back again.
* * *
WITH A rubber ball.
* * *
ALL MUCHLY chewed.
* * *
AND DROPPED the ball.
* * *
RIGHT AT my feet.
* * *
AND, OF course, I knew
* * *
AND I picked it up.
* * *
AND THREW it away.
* * *
AS FAR as I could.
* * *
AND AS far as I threw it.
* * *
AND AS fast as I threw it.
* * *
HE BROUGHT it back.
* * *
TILL MY arm was sore.
* * *
AND I had to tell him.
* * *
THAT I was all in.
* * *
AND AFTER that.
* * *
THE THREE of us.
* * *
WENT DOWN the road.
* * *
TO WHERE I live.
* * *
AND WE asked Mutt in.
* * *
AND GAVE him a bone.
* * *
AND AFTER a while.
* * *
THEY WENT back home.
* * *
AND DINNER time passed.
* * *
AND BEDTIME came.
* * *
AND THE lights were out.
* * *
AND ALL outside.
* * *
WAS AS black as pitch.
* * *
AND I heard something scratching.
* * *
AT OUR front door.
* * *
AND IN fear and trembling.
* * *
I WENT downstairs.
* * *
AND IT was Mutt.
* * *
WITH HIS rubber ball.
* * *
AND IT dropped at my feet.
* * *
AND I picked it up.
* * *
AND THREW it away.
* * *
JUST AS far as I could.
* * *
AND LOCKED the door.
* * *
AND BEAT it upstairs.
* * *
AND IF that fool dog.
* * *
HAS ANY idea.
* * *
I'M GOING to play games.
* * *
IN THE middle of the night.
* * *
HE'S CRAZY.

RUSH THAT K.C. CUT
HE DOESN'T SAY WHAT BREED OF A PUP "MUTT" IS.

I THANK you.

TEN-CENT CALL.

A newspaper man, holding an editorial position on one of the Boston dailies, escorted a girl friend into a soda water place on Federal street in the evening. It was near closing time. A clerk, who was cleaning off the counter, spoke up briskly: "Nothing doing, Jack, you'll have to get around earlier." The newspaper chap, a bit taken aback, happened to spy at this moment a ten-cent piece on the floor near the counter. With editorial alertness he said suavely: "Oh, I didn't wish to buy. I merely stepped in to pick up this dime from the floor." Which he did, then escorted his feminine companion out, leaving the clerk with no retort whatever.

FRANK IS THERE

Good for Lieutenant Francis M. Flannagan of Boston and Peabody, whose shrewd defence of Paul L. Nace at the recent Camp Devens court-martial, is now followed by announcement of Flannagan's appointment as trial judge advocate of the new general court-martial that is being formed at the camp. Frank was editorial stenographer on the Boston American, then reporter. Meanwhile he studied law at the Boston Y. M. C. A. Law School. With the war Frank promptly "hopped off" for Plattsburg Officers' Training Camp, came out a second "Loot," then was made a first "Loot" in due time. His law studies came in handy at Camp Devens, where he delivered the legal goods.

PILLS AND "POLS"

Dr. Samuel Woodward of Worcester, retiring president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, says that doctors should go in for politics, State offices and all that. Physicians and politics both have troubles all their own. The mixture might help each. But suppose your family physician is elected Governor. Fancy ringing up the State House and saying over the wire. "Hey, Governor, can you come right up to the house. The baby has fallen into the garbage can."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Unfairness Claimed

Editor Boston American:

May I enlist your aid against the unfair precedent now in the making by the Massachusetts General Court, namely, the exclusion of the Students' Army Training Corps from the benefits of the $100 bonus bill passed by the House of Representatives and now in the Senate?

Expressing a sentiment that is now prevalent, especially among the S. A. T. C. soldiers throughout the State, against the gross discrimination shown by the House of Representatives by their infamous action in excluding a wholly volunteer, entirely American and thoroughly patriotic unit of the army from the benefits of this bill, I write to protest against the "slap in the face" given by this body of men who, while not hesitating to substantially increase their own salaries, refuse to grant justice to soldiers. Their discrimination against "this organization" is a direct slap at the United States army, which is clearly evident to anyone with a knowledge of the facts, and forms the basis for future charges of unfairness and dissatisfaction. This action does not reflect the culture and learning so common in this State and which should be especially noticeable in our representatives.

Waiving comparisons and all other considerations, upon which no adequate provision for recompense can be made, it is only justice to extend to all honorably discharged soldiers of the United States army the benefits of this bill.

Requesting your support in this matter, I remain,

FREDERICK W. BENKER.
907 Saratoga street, East Boston.

P. S.—I believe that the title of this bill is misleading. It is to the effect, "An act to provide suitable recognition to soldiers and sailors who served in the war." and then excludes one group of soldiers for no reason whatsoever,

QUERY ABOUT THE FLOW OF LONG RIVERS

By Garrett P. Serviss

HERE is a question which, however absurd it appears to those who have the facts that underlie it clearly in mind, is nevertheless a useful one, since it covers a broad ground of popular misunderstanding concerning the planet on whose surface we live:

"Will you state why a long river does not have two mouths, one at each end, inasmuch as water does not run up hill? How comes it that the water in such rivers climbs, or runs, up over the curvature of the earth?"

This question is akin to the difficulty which many persons still find in really understanding how people can stay on the opposite side of the earth from us and not fall off. As long as we remain physical beings subject to the law of gravity, the one big controlling thing that we have got to keep in our mind's eye is the centre of the earth.

Earth Pulls Only One Way

No matter how we may be scattered over the earth's surface, potentially we all meet at its centre. Because of its shape the earth can pull us only in one direction—that of its centre. Theoretically, as far as the curvature of the globe is concerned, it offers no slope either up or down. All points upon it are assumed to be equally distant from the centre, and consequently objects at those points are all drawn with equal force toward the centre.

This statement of course ignores, first, the fact that the earth's surface is not smooth, but is broken by depressions and elevations, hills and valleys; and, second, the fact that its shape is not that of an exact sphere. But these things do not alter the general truth of what has been said. The differences of elevation are insignificant in comparison with the gigantic size of the earth, and the variations in its form from that of a true sphere are also relatively very slight. As we shall see, however, these variations do have important effects.

With these general principles in mind, let us take for examples three of the longest rivers on the earth, each running in a different direction, and let us see how they are affected by their location on the earth and by the geographical accidents of its surface. They are the Amazon, the Nile and the Mississippi.

The Amazon is a very lucky example to illustrate the absence of any obstacle to the flow of a river arising from the curvature of the earth, because it runs almost exactly from west to east, parallel with, and not far from, the equator. It traverses about 30 degrees of longitude, i. e., one-twelfth of the angular distance around the globe.

Now, measured around its equatorial girth, we may assume that the geometric outline of the earth, independent of geographic accidents of level, scarcely varies from a true circle, so that the fact that the Amazon flows continuously eastward over a distance of 30 degrees shows that the whole continent of South America, in its broadest part, must have a downward slope from west to east. It is this slight tipping of the continent that supplies the incline down which the Amazon flows, its mouth being nearer the centre of the earth than is its source.

River That "Runs Up Hill"

Take next the Mississippi. It flows from north to south over a distance of about 20 degrees of latitude or one-eighteenth of the earth's circumference. But in this case we have a very different situation of affairs with reference to the real outline of the earth. The Mississippi actually does, in a sense, run up hill, for, the earth, being flattened around the poles and bulged about the equator, the mouth of the river must be considerably (probably several thousand feet) farther from the earth's centre than is its source. The water then moves or rises away from the centre of attraction.

This is accounted for by the same force (centrifugal force) which produced the equatorial bulging of the planet at a time when its substance was still plastic.

AFTER TOBACCO—
TEA AND COFFEE!

"After tobacco—then tea and coffee must go!" Professor Roman, who wrote the W. C. T. U. book, "Nicotine Next," in next Sunday's paper explains why the powerful influences and big financial interests that won prohibition are also determined to send tea and coffee, as well as Lady Nicotine, hurtling down the toboggan after John Barleycorn. Two Monkeys Sentenced
World Prohibition
Where Is Government?
Laying on Hands

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Professor Garner, who confided to this writer years ago his intention to study monkey language, is back from his studies and positive that monkeys can ask "where are you," and answer "here I am."

That is about all they need to say. The conversation enables Mr. Monkey to locate Mrs. Monkey, and the monkey race goes on. They need no other language, having no thoughts to communicate, no benevolent plans to carry out.

Many human beings could get along well if their vocabulary were as limited as that of Professor Garner's monkeys. As a matter of fact, hundreds of millions of humans are limited in vocabulary to fewer than five hundred words.

With two votes to spare, the woman suffrage constitutional amendment passes the Senate. Thirty-six States must now vote for the amendment to put it in the Constitution. It is not pleasant to say, but it is probable that thirty-six States will not vote for justice to women.

Some States fear their colored women and say they can control colored men, not colored women. Others fear their white women, and say they haven't brains enough to share in making laws. It is probable that this constitutional amendment will be defeated by the States, and that women will be compelled to continue their fight, State by State.

They might shorten the fight by making it a party matter, all voting for the presidential candidate of the party that displays no sectional opposition to woman suffrage. If a party discovered that it had to stay out of power until it allowed women to vote it would allow the voting.

There is excitement in the Senate because the peace treaty reached Wall Street before it reached Washington.

Frank Munsey gave a dinner to Lord Northcliffe after the latter bought the London Times. Munsey had all the big financiers except Rockefeller, the biggest, to meet Northcliffe. J. P. Morgan sat sipping his red wine and water mixed. E. H. Harriman, who died too young, looked sadly at his milk and seltzer. Westinghouse, Widener, H. H. Rogers and a glorious collection of others listened to the speeches.

A newspaper man said to Northcliffe: "The interesting thing about the dinner is this: The President of the United States is not here, there is no Governor of any State, no member of Congress, no judge, but the government of the United States is sitting with you at this table."

It isn't as bad as it used to be, in days when Washington learned from Wall Street what to do. But there is still plenty of governing power in the lower end of New York, and it is in no way remarkable that the text of the peace treaty reached the financial government south of Canal street before it reached the other government by the Potomac.

From England comes the Reverend Rickson, working at Trinity Chapel in New York city, curing the sick by "laying on hands." The reverend gentleman says he is not a Christian Scientist, but something else. He thinks that he has cured crippled children with his hands.

If this gentleman could, by laying on hands, cure the sick it would be interesting, but not important.

One scientific convention, by preventing disease, can cure more a day than the total number upon which the Reverend Rickson could lay his hands on in a life time.

We cleanse the leper now by wiping out leprosy; there isn't any to speak of. We save millions of lives that were sacrificed to the plague by cleaning up plague spots. We put an end to smallpox by vaccination, prevent yellow fever and malaria by getting rid of mosquitos that carry yellow fever and malaria.

The world has passed beyond the individual healer, as it has passed beyond the individual stage coach driver. Things are done wholesale with science in medicine, and railroads in transportation.

In a world of Bolshevism, dynamite explosions, red flags, wild gambling and general disturbance, it is pleasing to learn of a certain force working always for pure morality. The Anti-Saloon League of America is starting out to spread prohibition all over the world. There will be interesting developments. When the Prohibitionists begin near the London docks, or near La Halle in Paris, the railroad station in Venice, to persuade English, French and Italian workers that what they really want is good cold water, with perhaps a little grape juice, it will offer extraordinary opportunities for convincing eloquence.
